

Rush in Key States Indicates Record Off-Year Turnout

Voters Standing in Line at
Polling Places in Big Cities

WASHINGTON (AP)—American voters turned out in heavy numbers in key states today to cast ballots in elections deciding the make up of congress for the next two years and picking governors in 35 states.

The balloting through the forenoon indicated advance predictions of a record off-year total of more than 50 million votes would be realized. With few exceptions, the weather was good countrywide.

Voters were standing in line when the polls opened in Detroit and other Michigan cities, and voting was reported heavy in upstate New York and in such populous states as Pennsylvania, Ohio and Massachusetts.

President Kennedy got his own ballot in early, voting in the basement of a police station on Boston's Beacon Hill. He got cheers from bystanders.

Kennedy's presence in Massachusetts was calculated to give a lift to Democratic candidates for office and, in particular, to his brother, Edward, the party nominee for the U. S. Senate.

But Kennedy's stake in the election outcome ran nationwide, it embraced the questions:

1. Whether the voters would elect a congress for the next two years of his term in the White House more responsive to his legislative desires than the present congress, and

2. How the voting, particularly for governors, might affect the basic Democrat vs. Republican lineup for the 1964 presidential election.

At stake: 39 Senate seats, all 435 House seats and 35 governorships.

Kennedy, trying to set a good example, is in Boston to vote in person.

The weatherman has cooperated with democracy by his prediction: generally dry weather for most of the nation, with scattered rain in the North.

Could Set Record
If around 50 million turn out, it will be a new high for these off-year elections. The previous peak year in 1958, was 47,854,000.

Since 83 million are qualified, no one will be bragging about the record. It's due more to a gain in population than to a more fervid interest in the nation's welfare.

Both sides wound up with the customary trumpeting about a certain victory.

But the final guess is that there will be no clear-cut victory.

This would be a fitting end for what has never been a clear-cut campaign, a battle that began chiefly over domestic issues but wound up under the cloud of the Cuban crisis.

The guessing:
1. Republicans may gain a few.

Truck Driver Dies In Iowa Collision

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—A truck driver was killed and another critically injured this morning in a fiery crash on Interstate 35 about 15 miles southwest of here.

The dead man was burned beyond recognition and was not immediately identified.

Officers said a semi-trailer rig from Thomaston, Ga., driven by James Morrison, 24, of Eureka, Ill., struck the rear of a truck loaded with rutabagas and bearing Wisconsin tags.

Both trucks were southbound. They went off the highway near the Cumming interchange.

The driver of the Wisconsin truck was thrown from his vehicle and pinned under the semi-trailer cab, which burned.

Morrison and his passenger, Harold Sauder, 27, also of Eureka, were hospitalized in Des Moines.

Morrison's condition was critical, Sauder's was fair.

Japan, U. S. Plan TV, Radio Transmissions

TOKYO (AP)—Japan and the United States agreed today to cooperate in experimental transmissions of television and radio programs via communications satellites.

Details of how the joint effort will be carried out will be decided between the Japanese Ministry of Posts and Telecommunications and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, a Foreign Ministry announcement said.

India to Recall U.N. Forces to Fight Chinese

New Delhi Regime
Seeks Way to Halt
Communist Drive

NEW DELHI (AP)—India plans to bring home its U.N. forces to battle the Chinese Communist invaders, a Foreign Office spokesman announced today.

Indian villagers will also be taught to shoot in the government's hard-pressed efforts to stem a Chinese drive that has overrun 2,000 square miles of borderland and thrust one spearhead into undisputed Indian territory.

India has troops with U.N. forces in both the Congo and the Middle East. The spokesman indicated that withdrawal of India's well-seasoned brigade of 5,700 men from the U.N. Congo force may still be some time in the future, however. He said India hopes to pull out this contingent as soon as an agreement is reached between the Congolese central government and secessionist Katanga Province. The two sides still seem far apart on Congo unity.

Thant Informed

The spokesman did not say how soon the 1,250-man force serving in Gaza would come home.

He said plans for the withdrawal of the Indians, the largest contingents in both U.N. forces, had been brought to the attention of Acting U.N. Secretary-General U Thant.

Girding for grass-roots resistance, Haryana Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri said rifle training will be given to every able bodied person in mountain areas facing Red China. Later they will be equipped with small arms.

Usually reliable sources reported the Chinese have occupied an abandoned Indian military base of 1960 when 21,110 votes were cast, the figure representing 86.5 per cent of those registered.

Today's noontime ward totals:
First, 230; Second, 280; Third, 1986; Fourth, 159; Fifth, 168; Sixth, 194; Seventh, 232; Eighth, 324; Ninth, first precinct, 74; Ninth, second precinct, 71; Tenth, 244; Eleventh, 160; Twelfth, 301; Thirteenth, 172; Fourteenth, 179; Fifteenth, 165; Sixteenth, 206; Seventeenth, 320; Eighteenth, 191; Nineteenth, 222; and Twentieth, 141.

A total of 755 votes was cast in Kaukauna up to noon, including: First Ward, 167; Second, 208; Third, 225; Fourth, 122, and Fifth, 33.

At Kimberly the total was 292; Combined Locks reported 57; and Little Chute had 251 votes cast during the forenoon.

AEC Liaison Officer Loses Canadian Post Because of Criticism

OTTAWA (AP)—Robert W. Ritzmann, liaison officer for the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission in Canada, has been recalled to Washington because of a letter published under his name in the Washington Post criticizing Canada's role in the Cuban crisis, it was disclosed here today.

Ritzmann's letter to the Washington newspaper was published Monday. Its contents were not available here.

An official of the U.S. Embassy said Ritzmann's recall was ordered by the U.S. State Department after the publication.

Ritzmann has been liaison officer to Canada for the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission for about two years. During this period he has been stationed at Canada's atomic energy establishment at Chalk River, Ont.

Rocket Withdrawal 'Common
Sense,' Deputy Premier Says

MOSCOW (AP)—Deputy Premier Alexei Kosygin declared today that withdrawal of Soviet rockets from Cuba was "a concession to common sense."

At the same time he pledged to help Cuba defend its sovereignty.

"We helped and will continue to help the Cuban people defend their sacred right to peace," Kosygin said.

He spoke at a rally in the Kremlin auditorium on the eve of the celebration of the 45th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Demands German Pact

Kosygin also expressed regret over fighting on the Indian-Chinese border. He urged immediate negotiations.

"The sooner these negotiations start," he said, "the better for the cause of peace."

Kosygin also demanded that the Berlin problem be solved by the signing of a German peace treaty.

He did not say when the Soviet Union might sign a separate treaty with East Germany. Such

U. S. Lashes at Russia for Cuban Bases

Dean Scores Effort To Picture Soviets
As Peace Loving

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States today blasted the Soviet Union for establishing missile bases in Cuba and then trying to picture itself as peace loving for having agreed to remove them.

U.S. Delegate Arthur H. Dean spoke before the General Assembly's 110-nation Political Committee after Valerian A. Zorin, Soviet deputy foreign minister, had opened a full-scale disarmament debate.

Zorin said that developments in Cuba not only showed the importance of disarmament but also the "good faith of the Soviet Union in trying to avert war."

Dean Surprised

Dean replied: "I could hardly believe my ears when I heard the Soviet delegate refer to his country as peace loving for having agreed to remove the very weapons that it had put there."

Both Dean and Zorin cited the Cuban crisis to illustrate the urgency of disarmament.

Dean noted that in his letter to Soviet Premier Khrushchev on Oct. 28 President Kennedy stressed the importance of removing the Caribbean threat and of "getting on with efforts to solve the disarmament question."

Jets-for-Cuba Activity Seems To Have Halted

U. S. Air Survey
Expected to Show
Exact Situation

BY HARRY KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Informed sources report the Soviet Union was still assembling jet bombers in Cuba last week but that there is evidence the work stopped after a tough U.S. warning.

Within a day or so U.S. surveillance flights are expected to show whether the Russians are withdrawing the IL28 bombers which are capable of carrying nuclear warheads and have a 750-mile range.

The Pentagon was maintaining an almost complete blackout of news dealing with surveillance results.

Washington sources said there was some indication the work of uncrating the bombers has stopped. They said further surveillance will be necessary to show whether the Russians are withdrawing the planes under Soviet Premier Khrushchev's agreement to remove all offensive weapons from Cuba.

Continued to Uncrate Jets
The informants said information reached Washington Saturday that while the Russians were dismantling the missile bases they were continuing to uncrate and assemble the estimated 20 or so IL28s shipped to Cuba.

President Kennedy was reported to have been highly concerned about the report which indicated Khrushchev might be hedging on his part of the crisis agreement.

On Sunday, according to the sources, U.S. representative John J. McCloy took up the matter in New York with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily Kuznetsov.

McCloy was understood to have told the Russian the United States wants the planes as well as the missiles removed from Cuba.

McCloy was reported to have made plain that Kennedy's no-invasion pledge held good only if the Soviet Union followed through with its part of the bargain.

Kuznetsov repeated the Soviet premier's assurances that the offensive weapons would be removed from Cuba under international inspection, said the sources.

At the Pentagon Monday, almost every question on the Cuban situation was turned back with a "no comment."

Sweden Plans Tighter Security Arrangements As Papers Disappear

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Security arrangements within the Swedish armed forces are under scrutiny following the recent disappearance of 24,000 secret documents from the offices of the comptroller general of the armed forces.

The documents were gone for nine days before a civilian truck driver returned them, saying he had picked them up by mistake.

The documents contained full information on Swedish ammunition supplies, estimated ammunition needs in case of mobilization and locations of Swedish munitions dumps.

Security police said the truck driver had orders to pick up eight boxes of electronics equipment.

The driver left with eight boxes. Nine days later it was discovered that the boxes contained the secret military information.

Mikoyan Inspects New Cuban Fishing Port

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan inspected the installations Monday at the new fishing port constructed in Havana harbor, Cuban radio reported.

The broadcast monitored here said Soviet fishermen invited Mikoyan to lunch. The radio did not comment on the Soviet diplomat's mission in Cuba regarding talks with Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

In September, Castro reportedly signed two treaties with the Soviet fisheries minister, Alexander Ishkov, for construction of a fishing port in the bay. Ishkov told newsmen recently in Mexico City that the port was installed for development of the Cuban fishing industry.

Inspection Instead of Naval Patrol

BY MILT FREUDENHEIM

UNITED NATIONS — Acting

Sec. Gen. Thant today was to welcome a Swiss Red Cross official here to work out details of a check for arms shipments to Cuba.

Dr. Paul J. Ruegger, former chairman of the International Committee of the Red Cross, arrived to confer with Thant on replacing the U. S. naval blockade of Cuba with a Red Cross team under U. N. auspices and with Soviet and American approval.

Meanwhile, all sides here still await word from Havana where Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan is talking to Cuban leaders about the Soviet promise to allow U. N. inspection of removal of Soviet missiles.

No word from Mikoyan had arrived last night, indicating Cuban Premier Fidel Castro may be still holding out against letting U. N. inspectors into Cuba.

Castro's refusal will mean continuation of American spy plane flights over Cuba, it was understood. Whether Russia will nevertheless agree to Red Cross inspection of incoming shipments is in doubt.

Must Verify Removal
The Red Cross checkup would go on for about a month. American officials stress the need to verify removal of Soviet missiles and long-range bombers on the ground.

Compared to this, the inbound shipping check is of minor interest to Washington. In other major U. N. news:

Kremlin Lauds Bulgarian Reds

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP)—Bulgarian Communists won praise today from the Kremlin's top party theoretician for backing the "peaceful coexistence" foreign policy preached by Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Mikhail Suslov, the theoretician, also gave Moscow's approval, for the purge of Stalinists from Bulgarian party and government posts, including Premier Anton Yugov and half a dozen others.

Suslov, head of the Soviet delegation to the eighth Bulgarian party congress, told the 1,065 delegates: "Under its capable leadership, the Bulgarian party has kept itself clean by its struggle against dogmatism, revisionism and sectarianism."

A significant factor in the Bulgarian purge was the ouster of Georgi Kumbuliyev, ambassador to Red China.

The strained relations between Moscow and Peking were clearly evident in proceedings here.

California Race Ends in Bitterness

Nixon Claims He's Been Victim Of 'Smear' as Brown Calls It 'Last Desperate Move'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Upwards of five million California voters were expected to troop out today to settle the long, quarrelsome contest for governor between Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown and Republican Richard M. Nixon.

The battle reached a climax with an election eve clash that echoed familiar charges and counter-charges.

Nixon, his political future at stake, told a statewide television audience from Los Angeles that he has been the victim of a malicious smear unlike anything ever seen in American politics. He characterized his opposition as panicky.

Big Voter Turnout

Brown replied that his opponent "ascribed to me charges I have never made." He called the broadcast "just a lattered rerun" of Nixon's campaign. Democratic spokesmen said Nixon, trailing in polls, was desperate.

An estimated 70 to 75 per cent of the 7 1/2 million voters will make their choice for the $40,000-a-year state job and its built-in national prestige.

In a 30-minute broadcast with his wife and two teenage daughters at his side, Nixon declared he had scrapped a review of state issues to fight back against last-minute attacks against him.

He said he had been accused of being anti-Negro, anti-Semitic, anti-Catholic; that his foes were trying to frighten needy aged and blind into thinking their pensions will be cut if he's elected and state workers will lose their jobs.

"Absolutely false," he said.

Denies Part in Loan

Nixon, introduced by actor Dick Powell, denied he sought the governorship with the White House in mind. He pledged again he would not seek national office in 1964. As for charges that he would be hostile to President Kennedy, the 1960 GOP presidential candidate said, "I am going to support him whenever I think he is right."

Finally, the former vice president denied once more that he had anything to do with the $205,000 loan by a defense contractor, Hughes Tool Co., to his brother, and mother six years ago.

Nixon said Brown acted like a "whipped dog" when he challenged the governor, at a face meeting before an editors' meeting last month, to put up or shut up on the Hughes loan.

Brown's Comment

Nixon said that three days later Brown stirred up the issue again through press agents, "by the newspaper fraternity, by those he controlled or thought he controlled, by favors he had done for them."

Brown said during the campaign that he would not charge his opponent with misconduct unless he had the evidence, and "I have no such evidence."

In his reply to the Nixon broadcast, Brown said "the tone of the whole performance was set by the allegation that I controlled members of the newspaper fraternity through favors."

"Mr. Nixon apparently feels that anybody dares to question his activities or motives, including the members of the press, is treating him unfairly. He just does not understand the responsibility of a public official to answer the honest questions of newspapermen," Brown said.

The governor said that "in the whole half hour he (Nixon) didn't say anything new or informative or helpful to the people of California."

The voters of California have no intention of letting Mr. Nixon use this state to further what again and again he reveals as his ultimate ambition... the Presidency."

Changes Asked By Savings, Loan Groups

Want to Increase Insured Deposit Limit to $25,000

WASHINGTON — A top government official was applauded here today by savings and loan executives for a three-pronged program for assuring continued orderly growth of the industry.

Taking bows was Joseph P. McMurray, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, supervisory agency for federally chartered associations, and to a lesser extent, insured state-chartered institutions.

Addressing the 70th annual convention of the U.S. Savings and Loan League, McMurray said:

The FHLLB is recommending to the Administration that Congress increase the maximum insurance on individual savings accounts from $10,000 to $25,000 through the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp.

Ask Authority

The FHLLB also will ask the Administration to urge Congress to broaden the investment authority of savings and loan institutions on securities, commercial, and community facilities, and extend it to consumer goods and other family needs.

Studies are under way for tightening supervision of insured S&L's to eliminate "ragamuffins" (marginal operators).

Frank Kosmach, president of St. Paul Federal Savings and Loan Association, said a hike in the maximum insurance of accounts would be a convenience to many individual savers.

Seek Protection

Such savers, now seeking maximum protection of their money, will limit their accounts to $10,000, although they may have more funds on hand, he explains. Some now use multiple accounts to save with safety.

Harold Halleen, president of Bell Savings and Loan Association in Chicago estimated that approximately 30 per cent of his institution's accounts amount to $10,000 or less.

First Returns Give GOP Edge—as Usual

WATERVILLE, N.H. (AP)—Rep. Perkins Bass, Republican nominee for the U.S. Senate, received all 22 votes from this tiny hamlet today in New Hampshire's first election returns.

Thomas J. McIntyre, the Democratic candidate, received no votes.

Waterville's vote count was completed shortly after midnight. Only five residents voted in person. The rest cast absentee ballots.

In the contest for governor, Republican John Pillsbury received 21 votes and Democrat John King a single vote.

Seven States Could be Key To Elections

Early Returns in Major Areas Could Tell Vote Outcome

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Because of their political history and their early vote-counting, seven states may provide an early tipoff tonight on which way the election is going.

Those seeking early trends will be keeping close watch on gubernatorial contests in New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania; U.S. Senate races in Connecticut and Maryland, and key House tests in Connecticut, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Kansas, North Carolina, Massachusetts and New York.

Family Spot

A GOP family spat in northern Republican New Hampshire has given Democrats there a chance for the governorship. Their nominee, John W. King, is running with the backing of Republican Gov. Wesley Powell, who lost to John Pillsbury in his primary bid for the GOP nomination.

Rhode Island Republicans hope to oust a Democrat from the state house. John H. Chafee is the Republican candidate against Gov. John A. Notte.

In three big states Republicans are locked in tight races for governors' chairs now held by Democrats.

Quit Congress

In Ohio State Auditor James A. Rhodes battled Gov. Michael V. DiSalle.

Victories by Scranton and Romney might project them into the 1964 Republican presidential nomination picture.

Senate victories in Connecticut and Maryland could strengthen the Democrats' control of the Senate.

Deniel B. Brewster, Democratic representative, and Edward T. Miller, Republican ex-representative, are jousting for the Maryland seat being vacated by John Marshall Butler, Republican.

Retirement of another Republican senator—Prescott Bush—has spurred Democrats' hopes in Connecticut. The contenders are Abraham Ribicoff, Democrat and former secretary of welfare, and Horace Seely-Brown Jr., Republican House veteran.

Five of the six House seats in Connecticut were decided by less than 5 per cent of the vote in 1960. Republicans are counting on a gain or two, and so are the Democrats, who now hold four of the seats.

Redistricting has tossed incumbent Democrats and Republicans at each other's throats in the West Virginia 1st, the Pennsylvania 6th, the Illinois 20th, Kansas 1st, North Carolina 8th, Massachusetts 5th, and New York 24th.

NFO Planning Milk Holding

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—There will be another full-scale market boycott by the National Farmers Organization soon, says NFO President Oren Lee Staley.

Speaking at the NFO state convention Monday, Staley said prices on meat animals were improved by the organization's September drive to withhold animals from market.

Staley said contracts have been signed with milk processors in four states and there still may be a withholding action on milk.

The NFO is seeking long-range contracts with processors, guaranteeing higher prices for farm products.

Only 1 Republican Election No Worry to These 53 Candidates

WASHINGTON (AP)—The election posed no problems today for the only candidates. In Alabama, 53 candidates—two running for governor, one for the U.S. Senate opposed by an independent, Frank and 50 for the House of Representatives. All Democrats except one, they are without opposition.

In addition, the Democrats apparently are assured of at least six more House seats, five in Alabama and one in Tennessee. Their candidate for governor in Alabama has only minor party opposition.

In Alabama, eight incumbent Democrats and three nominated Republicans are contesting in a statewide race for eight House seats. All are running at large because of a redistricting problem. The Republicans have suggested five write-ins to round out their ticket.

No Republican

In Tennessee, two Democrats who battled to an inconclusive result in the primary have squared off for another try, with no Republican in the field.

The only Republican among the 53 unopposed candidates is Rep. Eugene Siler of Kentucky. He has represented the mountainous, southeast Kentucky area for four House terms and the Democrats are not contesting his re-election.

The governorships the Democrats can claim without contest are in Georgia and South Carolina, where Carl E. Sanders and

Election No Worry to These 53 Candidates

WASHINGTON (AP)—The election posed no problems today for the only candidates. In Alabama, 53 candidates—two running for governor, one for the U.S. Senate opposed by an independent, Frank and 50 for the House of Representatives. All Democrats except one, they are without opposition.

In addition, the Democrats apparently are assured of at least six more House seats, five in Alabama and one in Tennessee. Their candidate for governor in Alabama has only minor party opposition.

In Alabama, eight incumbent Democrats and three nominated Republicans are contesting in a statewide race for eight House seats. All are running at large because of a redistricting problem. The Republicans have suggested five write-ins to round out their ticket.

No Republican

In Tennessee, two Democrats who battled to an inconclusive result in the primary have squared off for another try, with no Republican in the field.

The only Republican among the 53 unopposed candidates is Rep. Eugene Siler of Kentucky. He has represented the mountainous, southeast Kentucky area for four House terms and the Democrats are not contesting his re-election.

The governorships the Democrats can claim without contest are in Georgia and South Carolina, where Carl E. Sanders and

U. S. Election Day Has Special Significance For Berlin This Year

Khrushchev Had Set It as Date For Drawing Up Peace Treaty

Chicago Daily News Service

BERLIN — Election day in the United States has a special significance for Berliners this year.

It is one more and the most recent in the series of informal "deadlines" drawn by Nikita Khrushchev for the settlement of the lingering and dangerous crisis according to his plans.

In the immediate wake of the Kremlin's apparent retreat in Cuba not much was heard about the Soviet program for peace treaties with two Germans to mark the country's formal division and the creation of neutralized and demilitarized "free city" of West Berlin.

But on the surface at least Khrushchev now has been as good as his word. All over the Soviet bloc there is a swelling new propaganda campaign repeating the phrases that have been heard for almost four years.

Festival Planned

It coincides with one of Moscow's two great public festivals, the celebration today and Wednesday of the October revolution in 1917 that brought the Communists to power.

There is speculation that Khrushchev himself may make an important settlement. Normally the "orator of the day" is announced well in advance of the Red Square festivities, but this year there has been no public designation.

If Khrushchev is in trouble with his domestic followers, including the generals, there is little evidence. He seems instead to have picked up the loose ends left in his policies by the Cuban setback with remarkable speed.

The new demands for a German "peace settlement" a la Khrushchev so far come principally from East Berlin and from Sofia where the Bulgarian Communist Party, at Khrushchev's direction, is tossing out some of its more outstanding former Stalinists.

Fresh From Visit

Todor Zhivkov, Bulgaria's party leader, fresh from a blitz visit in Moscow, told the party congress that a German peace treaty was necessary. Not only to clear away the vestiges of World War II, but "to spoil the appetite of the West German revanchists," who, Zhivkov said, were demanding territory belonging to the Soviets, to Poland, and to Czechoslovakia.

All of these disputed territories were part of prewar Germany. Their disposition, according to the Potsdam Agreement, was to be settled at a future peace conference. In fact they already have been annexed by the various Communist regimes.

In East Berlin the Soviet Ambassador, Mikhail G. Pervukhin, who once confessed that he had sided with the "anti-party bloc" of Khrushchev's rivals, paid tribute to the "wise peace policy" and to the "personal intervention" of Khrushchev which, Pervukhin said, had "removed the danger of a military conflict" over Cuba.

Romney Takes Lead In First Report

POINTE AUX BARQUES, Mich. (AP)—Pointe aux Barques voted strongly for George Romney and the Republicans in today's election.

The tiny Huron County community at the tip of the Michigan Peninsula putting into Lake Huron, traditionally Republican, gave Romney 12 votes and incumbent John B. Swanson 2 in the race for governor.

This improved on the Republican showing in the 1960 election, when Democrat President Kennedy was elected. The vote that year was 11-4 for Republicans. It compared with the 13-3 Republican margin of 1958, the last previous off-year election in Michigan.

L. M. Spencer
Of Lawrence

Teacher Succeeds
Late Cola Parker

Lyle M. Spencer, president of Science Research Associates in Chicago, was elected to the Lawrence College board of trustees yesterday in its semi-annual meeting in Milwaukee.

Spencer replaces the late Cola Parker, who was on the board of trustees from 1944 until his death last summer. The new trustee will serve for three years.

Spencer is the son of former Lawrence English Professor M. Lyle Spencer. The elder Spencer left the campus in 1920 to become president of the University of Washington. The younger Spencer received both the A.B. and the M.A. from the University of Washington, and did further graduate work in sociology at the University of Chicago, where he was a Marshall Field fellow. In the year 1933-34, he was a round-the-world debater, under the auspices of the University of Washington and the U. S. Office of Education. He has taught sociology at the University of Washington, and since 1938 has been president of Science Research Associates, with the exception of the war years when he was a lieutenant colonel in the information and educational division of the United States Army.

Legislative Machinery Builds Up
Steam for Next Regular Session

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The composition of the 1963 legislature is not yet known, the elections being scheduled for Tuesday, but already the machinery for the new session is being readied.

In the back rooms of the legislative reference library, consultants are at work drafting Wyngaard scores of bills for the next regular session of the law-making branch that will convene early in January. M. G. Toepel, chief of the library, says he has already had 230 requests for the preparation of bills, or perhaps 10 per cent of the ambitious total that will be printed and submitted before the end of the next legislature about the time the corn tassels show up next July.

The bills represent the ideas of incumbent legislators sure of returning, interim committees on special study assignments, and state departments. Interim committee requests are likely to produce many scores of additional proposals, after the elections.

The accumulated resentment of many years is boiling over in the civil service of the state about the 80 per cent limitation on annual merit raises that may be awarded by employing department heads, the state employee union reports. It will make a drive in the new legislature to permit an employing officer to give raises to everybody, if he finds that everybody deserves one.

The Wisconsin State Employees Association now has about 7,000 dues-payers, represented in 55 chapters. A new organizing effort will be directed at the units within the state department of public welfare, and especially those at the new institutions recently completed and put into operation and in the expanding state highway administration.

Roy Kubista, the union's lobbying representative for the last quarter of a century, is preparing his campaign for a broad program of additional benefits for his clients in the 1963 legislative session starting in January.

The Judicial Council reports that it will have available the results of its study of the problem of providing counsel for indigent defendants by December, which apparently means that the issue will come before the new legislature.

Under the present law, as amended recently, lawyers named by courts to represent indigents in criminal cases are entitled to the regularly scheduled fees recommended by the State Bar of Wisconsin. In some instances such claims against counties have run into painfully high amounts, and the counties are demanding relief in the form of new legislation.

Sen. Robert P. Knowles of New Richmond will probably make a bid for the floor leadership of the Republican senate caucus in the 1963 legislature, assuming that the GOP remains in control of the upper house of the legislature, which is a virtual certainty. He has sent out letters to senate colleagues sounding them out about their views on the succession problem resulting from the retirement of Travis of Platteville.

Knowles probably will encounter competition from Sen. Jerris Leonard of Milwaukee, and especially if Philip Kuehn, Leonard's close friend, is elected governor. Knowles has seniority, but the seniority factor is not always binding in contemporary legislative organization arrangements.

The extent of the worry in some circles about the problem of drinking drivers on the highways is shown by a bill now being considered by a Legislative Council committee and that may be presented in the new legislature. It would require coroners or other officials charged with death examinations to take blood specimens from persons killed in highway accidents. The purpose would be to provide a statistical documentation, or refutation, of intoxication as a contributing cause to the high road accident fatality rate.

The protest of A. Thomas Rose, head of the Wisconsin State Employment Service, about being forced to retire on pension at the age of 67 is not likely to get much sympathy in other state capital agencies where the 65 year old rule has been applied more tightly in recent years.

Year by year extensions continue to be legal, at the option of employing departments. But Rose was one of the handful who managed to get extensions lately. More departments recently have adopted absolute rules on retirement, and have notified all their employees of their decisions in order to avoid the difficulties involved in denying applications.

A morale factor in state retirement policy is the exemption from the University of Wisconsin from the rules that apply to other employees of the state civil service establishment.

The University several times lately has retained retiring state civil servants of such prominence that the entire state government family knew about it instantly. Among them are H. J. Schmiede, former state purchasing director, and Russell Lewis, former first assistant state superintendent of public instruction.

The attorney general's office has ruled that if the Menominee Enterprises Inc., managing the properties of the former Menominee Indian tribe, proposes to offer excessively long term leases for recreational lots and building sites within the former reservation, they will be considered as

Bluff Over Berlin
Backfired for Reds

Election Day Turns Out Nicely
For U. S. Despite Khrushchev

BY JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—This is the day the Russians were going to be nice about. Then everything got mixed up, including the Russians, and the day turned out nicer than they seemed to have in mind.

For four years they had been trying to get the Allies out of Berlin and even put up a wall to keep them out of half of it. Then on Sept. 13 they stuck their neck out. They issued a statement. It was a bluff.

They suggested Americans get so worked up over politics they were willing to wait until after Election Day for a showdown on Berlin. But, to show how earnest they were, they said they should not delay the showdown indefinitely.

Didn't Stop
This would have been real neighborly if they had just stopped there. And they would have been happier right now if they had stopped. But they threw in some stuff on Cuba.

First, they warned the United States that an attack on Cuba would be the beginning of a war that might turn into a world nuclear war.

Second, they said they were sending weapons to Cuba but they were not establishing a base there and the weapons were purely defensive.

Third, they added a final touch which must make them wish now they had never thought of it. They said they didn't have to put missiles in Cuba because the missiles in Russia could reach anywhere.

Then the egg broke about a month later.

Found Missiles
The United States discovered the Russians were building Cuban missile bases which weren't defensive. President Kennedy warned the Russians to break up the bases and get the missiles out; and the Russians, who had lied about the missiles right up to the last, backed down in the face of a possible American attack on Cuba and began demolishing the bases.

All of which brings the story back—in very ominous fashion—to what looked on Sept. 13 like a very decent Soviet gesture in offering to delay a Berlin settlement until after Election Day.

By delaying the showdown until sometime later in November or December—provided Cuban bases hadn't been discovered—the Russians would have had time to get their missiles in place and cocked toward America.

Unveiled Plot

Then, in a showdown on Berlin later this year if the United States still balked at a settlement, Premier Khrushchev could have unveiled the plot he had been cooking up with missiles right against the American temple.

He could have told the United States it was too late to get tough about Berlin because the long-range Soviet missiles in Russia and the shorter range ones in Cuba could demolish the United States.

The United States, faced with that, would have been in a desperate box. But it didn't work out that way.

Now it's doubtful the Russians—who admitted they were lying when they meekly agreed to take back missiles which they said weren't here—will try for a Berlin crisis this year.

So Election Day in the United States turned out to be a nice day after all.

Man Admits Injuring His Daughter, 9

Vernon H. Ferron, 29, route 1, West DePere, was charged Monday with assault of his 9-year-old daughter and pleaded guilty when he appeared in Outagamie County Court, Branch 2 Monday.

Ferron was released after he signed a $100 property bond, and ordered back into court Nov. 19. A pre-sentence investigation will be conducted by the welfare department.

According to Sheriff Investigator Jack Frenz, Ferron pulled hair from his daughter's head Oct. 5. The girl's condition was discovered by her school nurse, who informed County Nurse Marian Freemore.

Mrs. Freemore reported the incident to the Outagamie County Sheriff's Department, which investigated the matter. Ferron had been drinking Oct. 5 and his daughter attempted to get away from him by hiding under a bed.

He reached under the bed and pulled her out by her hair, injuring her head, authorities said. Ferron has five other children.

Winnebago and Outagamie Bar
Groups to Meet

The Outagamie and Winnebago County Bar Associations announced today they would have a joint dinner meeting at the Holiday Inn, Appleton, on Nov. 29.

Principal speaker will be John A. Kluwin, Milwaukee, president of the State Bar of Wisconsin, whose topic will be "The Law and You." The address will include a report by Mr. Kluwin on his observation of European judicial systems and practice of law during several trips to Europe in recent years. Mr. Kluwin has studied these subjects in England, Scotland, Germany, Denmark and Switzerland.

Stanley R. Gabert and Joseph J. Shiff, both of Appleton, are the president and program chairman, respectively, of the Outagamie County Bar Association. The Winnebago County group participating in the arrangements include S. Norman Moe, Menasha, president, and William E. Crane, Oshkosh, program chairman.

Longer State Office Terms

One of the more important propositions upon which both candidates for the governorship of Wisconsin have agreed this year is that the short term tradition which Wisconsin has upheld for so many decades in the selection of its principal state elective officers no longer meets the needs of the times.

To the extent that the gubernatorial nominees can influence the legislators of their respective parties, therefore, the commitments of Mr. Kuehn and Mr. Reynolds on this question make the outlook for legislation in 1963 more favorable than during the last decade when such resolutions were offered in the state senate and assembly with scant response from any influential quarters.

The plan will be to authorize four year terms, to replace the two year law now in effect. Thus Wisconsin will be marching in tune with the trend in state administration in this country. Such a change will require an amendment of the state constitution, which means that the legislature's decision will ultimately require ratification by the electorate in a referendum vote also.

To some persons, regarding this question off-handedly, doubtless it will appear to be a step in the direction of lessening popular control of government, and perhaps, official responsibility to the electorate.

No doubt that is why politicians have been indifferent to such changes on this subject that have been offered in the legislature. They were unsure of the reactions of their constituents, and being unsure, they were not disposed to risk their displeasure.

What is needed here is a greater awareness of the complexities of government in these times, and the utter inability of the average man elected to the governorship, for example, for a two year term, to accommodate his duties on one hand with his practical political needs, on the other. The result is a governor who works half-time, at best.

Gov. Nelson has given us the most recent illustration of the problem. We don't mean to single him out for criticism, on this point. He is representative of the men who have served in Madison in recent years, to the extent that he was heavily engaged in legislative relations in the first year of each of his terms, and almost exclusively occupied with chores on the campaign stump in the second, or election year. This year it happened that he was running for senator. In 1960 he was running for re-election to the governorship. So it was with Vernon Thomson and Walter Kohler and Oscar Rennebohm and the others in the line of his predecessors. The mechanical necessities recognize no partisan distinction. This system means that a governor never really gets a chance to settle down to his basic work, which is administration and executive command.

It is time to consider seriously a four year term amendment, to give us the kind of gubernatorial service our changing times require.

They're Having Fun in Georgia

There is big excitement over the election in Georgia this year with every prospect that the old state will never be the same again. It is practically certain now that a Negro will be elected to the Georgia Senate. This will be the first time a Negro sat in a Georgia legislature since 1907.

The big change has come about because of a federal court ruling which brought an end to the state's county unit system. Under that system the rural voters dominated the state's politics at the expense of the city dweller in Atlanta and elsewhere. Further, as a result of reapportionment, Fulton County (Atlanta) will have seven senators instead of one as it had in the past. One of these senators will probably be LeRoy R. Johnson, a 38-year-old former prosecutor's assistant who is running as a Democrat, or T. M. Alexander, 53-year-old insurance executive, and one of the wealthiest Negroes in the United States. He is running as a Republican. The voting for these candidates was countywide and on that basis neither received a majority. However, it has now been determined that only the votes in the district the candidate is to represent will count towards their election and in Johnson's case at least this means that the nomination has already been won. In the past the Democratic nomination has meant almost certain election. In this case, however, in this Negro district, it is difficult to predict the outcome. However, the voters are enjoying immensely their opportunity to choose their representative between the candidates of two parties.

The excitement is even more apparent in the 5th Congressional District where L. J. (Jim) O'Callaghan, a 47-year-old Atlanta businessman, is the Republican nominee, and Charles Weltner, a 34-year-old attorney, is the Democratic candidate.

Here again the Democratic candidate should have the advantage but as one observer put it, the Georgians are "so joyously exercising their freedom from a Democratic straitjacket that they might just send a Republican to Washington in the Nov. 6 election."

The change is due largely to the elimination of the county unit system. In the free vote of the people Weltner easily defeated the 67-year-old veteran, James Davis, whose tenure in Congress had seemed to be as enduring as the red clay hills of Georgia.

There is new interest because for the first time campaign workers and voters feel that there is something important and interesting about working in a campaign or casting a ballot. In the past it had seemed that the outcome of a political contest was ordained in advance. "We just love it," one campaign worker exclaimed. "Another more seasoned observer said, "This is the first time in the 5th's history when race has not been brought up in a campaign and made an issue."

There is a whole new political world opening up in Georgia.

100 YEARS AGO
Quote from the Appleton Motor "Notwithstanding all means were resorted to by the Abolitionists to mislead and defraud the voters by spreading all manner of split tickets headed 'Democratic', notwithstanding all manner of falsehoods circulated against our candidates; notwithstanding a lying circular issued from the vile Motor office on the eve of election — yet we have gained a magnificent victory!" — Appleton Crescent.

It will be remembered that Beauregard ORDERED his followers to "call them all abolitionists," some time ago!

Our immediate object, however, in giving the above extract, is to call attention to the fact that we always do our best to print all kinds of election tickets, "lying circulars," etc. at the "vile Motor office," that may be ordered.

We do not feel quite at liberty to print to order, on such occasions, an exact counterfeit of the Union War ticket. But we can always give tickets that may be called for near enough like our own ticket to be able to screen any independent Republican or Union man who wants to vote as he pleases.

We have never knowingly printed any ticket intended to domineer over a single voter and we are astonished that anyone should have failed to see that we believe in free suffrage. We stand on that belief!

As for the gail of wind contained in the above extract (from the Crescent) the reader is just as able to hold his nose and prick it himself as we are for him.

Self-Reliant Seniors Make Summer Jobs

CLEVELAND (AP) — Aware that the teen-age job market was glutted, two Shaker Heights High seniors went into business for themselves last summer and cleared $700 apiece by patching driveways and parking lots. They bought 1,000 gallons of a tar compound and some stiff brushes, rented a trailer for $2.86 a day and "we were in business," Dennis Roarty and Vince LaMaida Jr. said. They sold jobs from door to door. They plan to invest earnings in a jeep and snowplow and go back to some of their same customers this winter.

Aldermen's Questions Reflect On Honesty of School Board

Editor, Post-Crescent.

The report in the Appleton Post-Crescent on Thursday, Nov. 1, concerning the Finance Committee's disposition of the budget of the Appleton public schools indicates an attitude of some public officials that is shocking in its consequences.

The article stated that aldermen asked Ald. Edward V. Krueger, a former school board member, to "tell us where the budget is padded."

That the Board of Education believe its budget to be sound and necessary for quality education is of little consequence; what is more important is that certain of our public officials expect it to be "padded." This accusation reflects squarely upon the moral integrity of school board members who are voluntary, unpaid public servants, and mirrors the apparent belief of paid councilmen that all government is dishonest, including their own.

Such an attitude destroys the very foundations of our local democratic process, for it invites the Board of Education to overstate its budget, knowing that cuts will be made regardless of need.

Actually, that such an accusation is made may well support the increased need for better education, for somewhere along the line the Appleton public schools have failed to instill in its own elected council members, whom it has educated in past years, a belief in the fundamental honesty and goodness of democratic government.

Very truly yours,

Franklin L. Nehs, Member Board of Education

Student Believes U. S. Policy on Cuba Wrong

Editor, Post-Crescent:

The last few days have been filled with tension over the Cuban affair in which the United States has proclaimed the armed quarantine of Cuba. Reaction has polarized into two extreme positions, being either one of complete criticism or complete support. While it might seem unpatriotic for one not to support his government's stand, I feel the action of the United States over Cuba is in error.

My first reason for concern is that this country is using a double standard in the policy towards Cuba. Our nation for some time now has been denouncing the Communists as the people who would upset world peace and security. I ask, "Does our action in Cuba justify the goals that former Americans have stood for?" We as a nation have always opposed aggressive acts such as those committed in Korea, Tibet, and in present day India. Our action on Cuba does not follow that tradition. Instead it is an aggressive act that does not have any ethical or moral grounds of justification for action.

Our so-called quarantine is just like a blockade. It is the same thing we are doing as if the Soviet Union would blockade the country of Turkey. That country (Turkey) has offensive weapons just as Cuba has. I see no difference in the two.

While I realize I have taken a somewhat harsh view of the United States policy, I cannot emphasize too much the need for this country to continue to strive for peaceful relations in working out the problems of the world. For what is more important than Cuba is the salvation of the world. If both sides start using power politics, how can there be any hope for peaceful solutions to world problems? The United States must not allow itself to come down into the realm of evil tactics that are now being used by the Soviet Union. We as a nation must strive for the continuation of negotiations at the United Nations or at summit conferences. If we do not strive for negotiations a catastrophe will be the result. Up to now just one side has been belligerent, but if both sides become belligerent nothing can stop World War III. That is why I do not support our government's stand regarding Cuba.

Nosy Pig Saves Farmers' Lives

TYRONE, Okla. (AP) — Thanks to a nosy pig, one and maybe two farmers are alive today.

Don Bevan and Bob Howell feed their livestock near each other every morning and while the animals eat, they chat and usually lean on a metal auger which distributes pig feed.

As they talked recently a pig touched the auger and dropped dead. The machine had developed an electrical short.

Fights Ruled Out

Naturalists Ralph and Florence Welles believe that the celebrated butting matches of bighorn rams are probably rituals, not serious fights for possession of mates. The bouts apparently fulfill some deep urge in the mating season but do not directly concern the ewes.

Wyngaard Is Skeptical About Endorsement of State Economy Study

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — The Wisconsin State Chamber of Commerce has announced, with an appearance of considerable satisfaction, that more than 80 candidates for seats in the state legislature have endorsed its plan for an economy and efficiency study of the state government that would be authorized by a legislative act when the 1963 legislature convenes.

The Chamber is thumping for a plan to have an outside firm of administration specialists survey the state's services and expenditures, to find out whether and how they can be adjusted for the benefit of the taxpayers in these days of high flying budget demands.

All this is perhaps interesting, but it is not very important.

Getting the signatures of typical legislative candidates, during the height of the political campaign season, on such a proposal is probably about as difficult as getting them to endorse a program of earlier springs and later autumns. It means practically nothing. These same men, or perhaps half of them, will be sitting in the next legislative session and they will perform just about as did their predecessors during these years of painfully rising taxation and spending, and during their own campaigns cheerfully assented when somebody asked them whether they believed in more efficiency and more economy.

THE PROPOSITION

It may be presumed that the Chamber can get a firm of cold-eyed auditors and analysts to examine the state budget and state government organization and operations methods, and file a thick report with some suggestions for retrenchment or for better ways of delivering governmental services. As a matter of fact, any reasonably alert reporter can spend a couple of days in the state capitol today and come away with queries and doubts about the way things are being done — and about the validity of some of the things that are being done.

The problem is that the level of state spending involves not the judgment of a technical auditor or administration analyst.

It involves questions of political taste, which will be resolved in a political way.

There are some dollars being spent today in state government that your correspondent, from his perspective, on the basis of his environment and background and taste, regards as sheer nonsense, as waste and an imposition upon the body politic. But it is perfectly evident that there are others in whole-hearted disagreement, including past governors, legislators and pressure groups who persuaded the state as a political community to authorize such expenditures for such services.

What is extravagance, or worse, to one critic, is essential and worthy to another.

FUNCTIONS

What is needed and doubtless won't be had until there is a more serious financial pinch is a reappraisal of state (and all public) expenditures by function, and a grading of their value in terms of public benefits.

But here again there are widely varying tastes and convictions — and the proof is not to be had even for that conscientious legislator or governor who seeks it. Who can tell the relative returns of a dollar spent for the university, or a state mental hospital? The alumni society, on the one hand, and the Association for Mental Health will dispute vigorously and inconclusively. Both will exert political pressure, absolutely persuaded of the merit of their own interest, oblivious or unconcerned about the conviction and demand of the other.

The decision is made in a political way. The creaking wheel gets the grease, as former Sen. Trunko of Walworth county used to say so often in legislative floor debates. When all the wheels are creaking, all are lubricated. The legislature meets the diverse and competitive demands as best it can, with an eye upon the political consequences. All the lugubrious and even ingenious proposals of the Chamber of Commerce and other conservative groups won't change the political realities — although it is perhaps healthy to have some reminders occasionally about the end results in tax liability.

Little Questions Need To Be Answered First

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the chief reasons that people don't get the right answers is that they don't ask the right questions. They think they are being serious when they are merely being solemn.

The other evening at a little gathering, a man turned to me and asked what I thought about the Congressional election trends. I murmured some polite evasion. He then asked me about the Cuban situation. I shrugged noncommittally.

He became exasperated and charged me with a refusal to be "serious." I said I would rather play bridge than engage in the kind of futile discussion he was proposing. And I told him why.

Like most people, he thinks the Big Questions of the day are the important ones. But he never stops to ask the Little Questions that are forever at the bottom of all fruitful discussions.

How can we have an effective dialog about the election or the Cuban situation, or any other large subject, until we agree on some common aim? Unless we both understand what is meant by "the good life," we will be arguing at cross-purposes all night — which is why most political debates end exactly where they begin.

The U.S. airlifts arms to India. Nehru wants to seize a batch of prisoners from the invading Red Chinese — so he can rush them into membership at the United Nations.

Apathy along the campaign trail suggests a good way to raise revenue and still benefit the people — tax political speeches.

Russia's 50-50 deal on Cuba is now clarified. If we'll trust Khrushchev to do what he promised, he'll trust us not to ask him if he kept it.

seats in the House, but nowhere near the 44 they need if they are to gain control.

2. Democrats may pick up a couple of seats in the Senate, but this won't help them much since they already have a 64-36 lead.

3. Republicans will get in their hardest, and most lasting, licks in the chase for governors. They are favored to win 19 races, the Democrats 16.

If these predictions are true, then after all the sound and the fury, the millions spent, the energy expended, the names called, the situation would boil down to this:

Kennedy would be denied the increase in Democrats he says he needs to get his programs through Congress. But since the party in power normally loses seats in these off-year elections, Democrats could find solace in the fact that it wasn't worse.

Factor in 1964 Election

Republicans would be repulsed in their great objective of 1962 control of the House. But by winning the governorships—especially if they should succeed in such major states as Pennsylvania, Michigan, Ohio and California—they would be in clover for the presidential race of 1964.

Control of the statehouse is considered the and first best step toward solid political organizing.

It has been a strange campaign throughout.

Here was John Fitzgerald Kennedy, riding in a motorcade through the Naugatuck Valley of Connecticut, speaking earnestly at a bean feed in St. Paul, trying to stir a listless crowd at the Muskegon, Mich., airport.

Ike Also Campaigns

Everywhere the message was the same: Send me more Democrats so that I can get this country moving again, with Medicare, with more jobs, with better housing.

Here was Dwight D. Eisenhower acting far more politically heated than he ever did as President, stumping around the country with the enthusiasm of a young war horse.

From San Francisco to Boston, his plea was the same: Let's cut down on all this spending. Let's elect Republicans, and have some sanity around here.

And then, the dramatic night of Oct. 22.

The Russians, the President said, were installing offensive nuclear weapons in Cuba, something this nation would not tolerate. He threw an offensive arms blockade around the island, and the United States and Russia moved toward a showdown.

Kennedy Cancels Trip

With this, Kennedy canceled all his remaining campaign trips.

In the past two frantic weeks no one has been able to say with any accuracy what Cuba means politically. But it hasn't been for want of trying.

Will it really help Republican—many of whom have been calling all along for a tougher line on Cuba? Or will it mean a tendency to rally around the President and vote Democratic as a sign of solidarity?

In all elections, and especially off-year elections, issues are tricky to evaluate.

For politics is people.

Voters, stepping into their polling booths today, aren't deciding issues, however important they may be. They're voting for—or against—a particular candidate, side, through death, retirement, resignation or defeat. Among those retiring are the oldest man in Congress, Rep. Brent Spence, a Democrat from Kentucky, throwing in the towel at 88, and Republican Reps. Clare Hoffman, 87, of Michigan, John Taber, 82, of New York and Noah Mason, 80, of Illinois.

But youth is eager to be served. There's young Kennedy who at 30 barely makes the minimum age for senators, and there's Scott Anderson who got into the North Dakota Legislature at 21. Now Anderson, a Democrat, hopes to get into the House the first year he's eligible, at 25.

Well, there's room for all ages. Democracy's work is never done.

posals demanding economic sanctions against South Africa and asking the security council to consider expelling South Africa from the United Nations.

Western diplomats hope to water down this move, which passed the U. N. special political committee by a strong 60 to 16, with 21 abstaining, after a hot debate condemning South Africa apartheid race segregation laws.

The United States, Britain and most other major trading nations voted against the proposal in committee, while speaking against apartheid.

Nuclear Test Issue

If the assembly completes action of apartheid, it next takes up two proposals on banning nuclear tests passed yesterday in committee.

All the nuclear powers abstained again this year on a 37-nation proposal that nevertheless racked up an overwhelming 81 to 0 victory, with 25 abstaining.

This proposal calls for ending all testing Jan. 1, regardless of whether a treaty has been agreed upon by the Soviets, Americans and British at Geneva. It includes western wording about international "assurances for effective detection and identification."

However, British and American wording about "on-the-site inspection" inside Russia had to be dropped. Both countries claimed later this was covered by "identification."

Congo Crisis Renewed

A British-American proposal urging the 18-nation Geneva disarmament negotiations to wrap up a treaty banning nuclear weapons tests under international verification also was passed, 50 to 12, with 42 abstaining. The Soviet bloc plus Cuba and Mali voted "no."

The Congo crisis began heating up again today as Thant met with his Congo advisory committee to hear a demand for new powers to act against breakaway Katanga province.

Congo Foreign Minister Justin Bomboko was to tell the committee only the threat of force will bring unity to the Congo. A security council meeting on the Congo now seems imminent.

Adding to the "now or never" urgency of the Congo situation were reports that India has notified Thant it may have to with-

Rockefeller Set to Go for Presidency

New York Republican Hopes to Get Nomination by Convention

BY JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — If Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller wins reelection today by a substantial margin, his campaign for the 1964 Republican presidential nomination apparently will get under way quickly.

Politicians expect the New York governor to go after the nomination hammer and tongs with the hope that within 18 months he can tie it down as securely as former Vice President Richard M. Nixon did before the 1960 party convention.

Rockefeller learned the hard way in 1959 that you don't just announce your availability for the nomination and sit back to await supporters to storm your doors. This time he seems ready to supervise the grinding state-by-state work necessary to line up convention delegations.

Hall Backing

The New York governor has several factors going for him in this endeavor. He can call on Leonard W. Hall, former GOP national chairman for the kind of field work that gave Nixon a strangle hold on the 1960 nomination.

There will be no question about the availability of finances for this operation. Most presidential aspirants have to scrounge for donations to meet the costs of building the kind of headquarters staff Rockefeller already has in operation.

Although he undoubtedly will have rivals for the nomination among GOP governors elected today, Rockefeller will have the jump on them. The New York governor has his state job well in hand. Newly elected governors will have a year at most to get on top of theirs before they can do much effective work toward the national nomination.

Has 43 Votes

Rockefeller, whose state has 43 of the nation's 335 electoral votes, has never given any indication he shares the view of some GOP strategists that President Kennedy will be unbeatable two years from now.

Neither is he caught in the net of the series of predictions made by Rep. William E. Miller, the GOP national chairman, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and others that the 1964 nomination wouldn't be worth a plugged nickel if the Republicans didn't make substantial gains in Congress.

Rockefeller's chief liability is Noted Federal Judge Dies in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Former U.S. District Court Judge George H. Moore, whose career on the bench included many cases of nationwide interest, died Monday in Barnes Hospital.

Moore's death at the age of 84 came after a long illness. He had been in the hospital since Aug. 15.

He had spent a considerable amount of time justifying what he called the Cuban compromise.

"Some people," he said, "ask if it was necessary to yield. We think it was necessary to make a concession from both sides. . . . This compromise is in the interests of the whole world, because on that basis there has been liquidated the danger of a thermonuclear war."

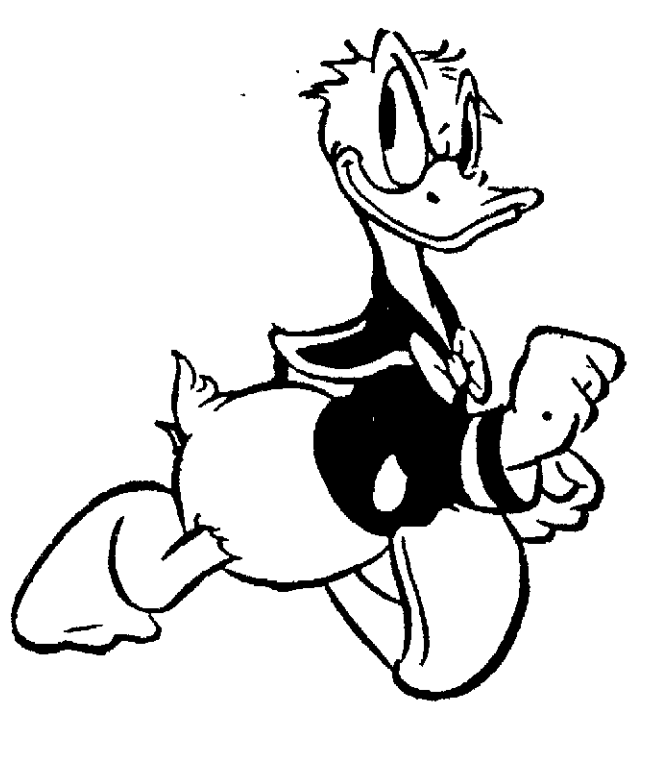

Head of Wisconsin Investment Board to Retire on Friday

MADISON (AP) — Charles F. Jacobson of Madison announced Monday he will resign Friday as executive director of the Wisconsin Investment Board. He has been in state service since 1950.

Jacobson said he was announcing his resignation in advance so that "it will be absolutely clear that the result of Tuesday's elections had no bearing on my decision to leave a position which I have been very proud to hold."

He said he plans to join a life insurance firm Jan. 1.

Artificial Flowers Can be Placed in Paper Cup Vase
BY CAPPY DICK
A wall vase in which to place artificial flowers is today's fun-project for boys and girls. As shown in Figure 2, the vase is made from a paper cup and a paper doily. It may be attached to the wall of your room with thumbtacks pressed through the doily. With scissors, carefully cut away one half of the paper cup as shown by the dotted lines in Figure 1. Apply glue to the cut edges of the cut. Place the paper doily on a table, first spreading waxed paper beneath it to prevent damage. Rest the paper cup on the doily, pressing gently enough to create a bond between the cup and doily. Let the project remain undisturbed until the glue has dried, leaving the cup firmly attached to the doily. Cut a strip of lacy edge off another doily and with glue fasten part of its reverse side to the inside top of the cup, then fold the lace to the outside of the cup as in Figure 2. This completes the vase. After thumbtacking it to the wall, place some small artificial flowers, preferably paper ones, which are light in weight, inside the vase as the boy has done in the illustration. It will be an attractive decoration for your den. (Copyright, 1962)

Answer
30 students. Since there are nine remaining after three rows are filled, and only two after four rows are filled, there must be seven seats to a row. Multiply 7 by 3, and add 9 — or multiply 7 by 4 and add 2.

Jingo Has Pipe Dream That Could Come True

His Idea on Entertainment Center To Service Entire Fox River Valley

BY JINGO
The Bard enjoined the poet to "give airy nothingness a habitation and a name." Although Jingo doesn't count himself a poet, the job is challenging and he'd like to try his hand at it.
This airy nothingness, this dream, isn't all blue pipe smoke. There is a considerable body of fact to form a very real basis for speculation.
With today's transportation, good roads and powerful, comfortable cars, distance has lost a good deal of meaning. Thirty miles really can not be considered entirely divisive any more. A poll of today and Sunday's circus audience at the Brown County Arena in Green Bay would surely reveal a great proportion of residents outside of the immediate neighborhood.
Allow Jingo to stipulate that there is proof enough to consider Green Bay and the Fox Cities a single community, at least for a sizeable list of specific interests. Thank you.

Jingo

In this community there are about 250,000 people — a near metropolis. This community also has attractions and facilities to draw a considerable number of outside visitors over the year. Given proper exploitation it is not inconceivable that these visitors could swell that population annually by about 50 per cent.
Now our figure jumps to 375,000!

That's the springboard into the blue pipe smoke.

Multiple Center
Imagine a structure in the beautiful landscape just north of Kaukauna. It would be easily accessible from both ends of our single community and capable of drawing on the entire 375,000 people.

The structure would contain a first rate restaurant with striking decor and memorable service. Alone it could become a landmark and a magnet.

But it doesn't stand alone. In conjunction with it there is a well equipped theater with a seating capacity of 375 — a tenth of 1 per cent of the population.

The restaurant-theater also would boast a bistro where dancers could swirl to the music of a small combo and where friendships could be toasted.

Big Gamble

But the blue pipe smoke isn't thick enough to hide the fact that such a pleasure dome could very well be a tremendous gamble.

However, there are no unsolvable problems in blue pipe smoke.

The building could be constructed by an association of wise men. The individual parts could be leased to pro-rate the costs. A theatrical and musical stock company could provide the entertainment talent and, being a part of the association, also would spread the impact of the gamble.

A further safeguard would place the theater at the bottom of the building priority. Until it proved itself, the theatrical enterprise would be a summer attraction housed in a tent adjacent to the building allowing it to pay for its permanent housing in due course.

There! The pipe's gone out and Jingo has given airy nothingness a habitation. For its name? It could very well be successful!

'Perry Mason' Show to Have Guest Stars

Raymond Burr to Enter Hospital for Surgery in December

BY CYNTHIA LOWRY
NEW YORK (AP) — Necessity may prove to be the mother of welcome dramatic invention as far as CBS' "Perry Mason" show is concerned.

Raymond Burr, who has played Erle Stanley Gardner's indomitable trial lawyer for five seasons, will enter a Los Angeles hospital for minor corrective surgery in December, the network announced. As a result, the company must make several shows during his convalescence without the star.

According to present plans, Paisano Productions which makes the weekly courtroom drama — and of which author Gardner is an officer — plans to sign big-name guest stars, including Bette Davis to substitute.

The unavoidable absence of Burr could have a salutary effect of boosting the program out of the format to which it has adhered through the years, including that weekly courtroom confession by the murderer — usually from a spectator's seat.

Follows Books

Gail Patrick Jackson, executive producer of the show, explained to this reporter in Hollywood recently that the series is written in its unchanging form "to keep the characters and the stories as compatible as possible with the books."

"After all," she said, "Erle Stanley Gardner is still writing Mason books and they are enormously popular."

But without Perry in the show, there's no point in protecting Gardner's special whodunit approach, and the writers might experiment. And if change should act as a tonic to the show's ratings, future shows — with Burr

Film Series To Benefit Art Center

Three widely different films, including a Bolshoi ballet performance, a Broadway play and a best-seller, feature the new movie series being sponsored this season at the Neenah Theater by the Friends of Bergstrom Art Center.

The film series again will be used as a fund-raising program for the invitational purchase award exhibit at the art center in Neenah. Both season and single performance tickets now are available at the Belling Pharmacy in Appleton, Morton's Drug Store in Neenah and at the theater box office.

The first film, Tchaikovsky's "Swan Lake" performed in its entirety by the celebrated Bolshoi, is scheduled for 7 and 9 p.m. Nov. 13 and 14.

"A Raisin in the Sun," adapted from the Critics Award play by Lorraine Hansberry, will be shown at 7 and 9 p.m. Dec. 11 and 12. The third presentation, "Only Two Can Play," is the Bryan Forbes screen adaptation of Kingsley Amis' best seller, "That Uncertain Feeling." Peter Sellers will star in this movie, scheduled for Jan. 15 and Jan. 16.

First Space 'Hero' Dies From Shigella

HOLLOMAN AIR FORCE BASE, N.M. (AP)—One of the United States' early space heroes is dead of shigella dysentery.

Enos, a 6-year-old chimpanzee who orbited the earth twice in a Mercury capsule on Nov. 29, 1961, died Sunday. He had suffered about two months with the disease.

After his flight, Enos was returned to the laboratory here and had been in an advanced training program until he took sick.

back in his role — might have a broader, less predictable base.

The program, switched this season to Thursdays from its old Saturday night spot has dropped out of the Nielsen "top ten" rated shows but even in its new position it is still pulling a hefty share of audiences.

Nason on Education

Students Advised to Train Themselves to Communicate

BY LESLIE J. NASON, Ed. D.
Professor of Education, University of Southern California
If the ability to express oneself is the mark of an educated man, then the men of the future will have to be largely self-educated.

Employers complain bitterly that high school graduates cannot express themselves clearly in a simple letter without grammatical and spelling errors.

College freshmen, who received A's and B's all through high school, are stunned when their first college English themes come back marked D and F.

Four Trends
Four trends are responsible for this decline in communication ability:

Size of high school classes has been increased to a point where expression by an individual student is held to a minimum. A class of 40 students meeting for 40 minutes certainly cannot devote more than 30 seconds to each student for practice in expression.

The study-recitation procedure in vogue 50 years ago has been discarded. The student used to study an assignment and his comprehension was tested in the next class period. It isn't any more.

Progressive education has allowed the student to think in his own way. Thinking accurately on a topic prescribed by another person is a new experience. The student is unable to cope with it.

Standardized tests, to a large extent, have replaced the essay type examination. Students can receive a high test grade through memory without having to express themselves.

Not all teachers and school systems have digressed to the extreme mentioned above. But too many have. Since change in our schools is always slow, students must initiate the remedy themselves.

Procedures for Self-Help
Here are some procedures by which students can train themselves in the communicative skills:

Two freshmen girls, faced with low grades on their first exams, realized they lacked practice in formulating and communicating ideas. They devised a successful scheme.

Although they did their assignments separately, their reviews for tests were a joint effort.

One, holding the books and notes, asked questions that might appeal on the test. The other formulated the answers, with criticism from the questioner. Then they exchanged roles.

A student can, of course, carry on their procedure by himself. Answering his own questions is especially effective when he takes the trouble to write out the answers. Writing them is practice in written communication — a skill essential to passing examinations.

In language class a student should spend part of his thinking efforts formulating in the language those questions or statements which he would ask or say if given the opportunity.

A student can also summarize in his own words the ideas presented by the teacher. If these short summaries are written as notes, every class period becomes a practice session in written expression.

In reading an assignment a student should recite back to himself the ideas contained in each section of the material. With a little practice, he can readily express the ideas in his own words.

These are procedures through which students can make up for the neglect of such training in our educational system by training themselves.

Man Helps Out JFK, Gives Him a Dime

BOSTON (AP) — Newell Garden, an electronics company employee, says he knew President John F. Kennedy when he didn't have a dime.

Garden relates how he met Kennedy at LaGuardia Airport, New York, when Kennedy was in the Senate.

"How are you, Senator?" Garden asked.

"I need a dime to call my home in Hyannisport," Kennedy replied. Garden accommodated.

Kennedy reversed the charge to Hyannisport.

The Gaslight Girls from the Chicago club, above, performed at the colorful Butte des Morts party Saturday evening. In addition to the girls, a four-piece combo provided music. At right are Mrs. Ben Pfefferle, Al Bass and pianist Bob Wedyck of Chicago. Player pianos and a nickelodeon were placed in each room.

Gaslight Era Revived at Gala Butte des Morts Party Saturday

The decor and entertainment of another era were recreated Saturday evening as Butte des Morts Golf Club turned itself into a 'Gaslight Club' and the Roaring Twenties returned with a vengeance. The Charleston, the Speakeasy, Spiked Beer, Bathtub Gin and short skirts were only part of the atmosphere which recreated the saga of the 20s.

Entertainment was provided by four young women from the famous Chicago Gaslight Club, a four-piece Gaslight combo and a local barbershop quartet—the Spinal Chords—composed of Del Bradford, Roger LaBerge, Don Schanke and Richard Plucker.

Typical Era
The entry was lighted by authentic gaslights, and the entrance was red carpeted, through the foyer and down the hall to the main dining room. To the left, the card room became the 'Last Chance Saloon', true to the days of the Old West, with Navajo blankets, 'Wanted' posters, and wagon wheels around the room's perimeter. An old time Winchester on the bar guaranteed order, and a stuffed moose head over the bar looked down on the proceedings. The floor was covered with sawdust,

Mrs. Al Schnese, Dressed as one of the deb's of the 20s, talks on the phone as Mr. and Mrs. James Thielman look on. Many of the party-goers donned the dress of that frivolous era, and the derby and 'spit curl' were the rule, rather than the exception.

as in the days of the old time saloon. Cuspidors of shiny brass were placed in front of the bar. A nickelodeon gaily hammered out its tinny music, and mustached bartenders waited on 'the trade.'

The walls of the saloon were adorned with mementoes of the day—kerosene lamps, gaslights, stuffed animals, a wind-up

'talking machine' old wall telephones, a coat rack made of deer and antelope feet, and, guarding the entrance, a saddled plaster horse.

Player Pianos
The main dining room the 'Gaslight Bar,' decorated with prism chandeliers, library table lamps, round tables with colored lamps and Victorian furniture. As in every room, a player piano provided music when the entertainers took time off from their duties.

Flowered Bird Cages
In the 'Gaslight Bar' the windows were covered with heavy cardboard, painted to resemble red velvet drapes. This wall provided the backdrop for the stage, where the Gaslight Girls sang and danced. A teller's cage served as dispenser of Gaslight 'bucks'. Ornate bird cages, trailing flowers, hung from the ceiling.

The 'Speakeasy Room'—the East Lounge—was entered by saying the right words into a peephole. They were, of course, "Joe sent me." In this room the chandeliers were hung with red crepe paper streamers. A piano occupied the center of the floor and tables with red checked clothes surrounded it. A light outside silhouetted the outlines of a couple dancing the Charleston.

About 55 Butte des Morts members worked on the club's transformation. Those with artistic talent painted typical 'art' of the times, and others took care of securing items to complete the atmosphere of the era. A sandwich bar was set up in each room throughout the evening. Two hot buffets were served at 11 p.m.

Women in Politics Work For Better Government

BY JOY MILLER
NEW YORK (AP) — Behind every man who wins election today—for that matter, behind every candidate who loses—stand more than just a steady spouse and assorted loyal female relatives.

In his behalf dozens, often hundreds, of public-spirited women spent their last ounce of energy ringing doorbells, telephoning vast lists of voters, stuffing envelopes, haranguing groups of all sizes, serbes and sympathies.

Each election apparently brings out more women volunteers than the last. Why this burgeoning interest in behind-the-scenes service?

CLINTONVILLE — Christ Lutheran Church will be the setting for the Dec. 8 marriage of Miss Joan Kathleen Conlon and Ronald R. Hansen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louie Hansen, route 2, Clintonville.

The announcement of the engagement was made by the bride-elect's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Conlon, route 2, Clintonville.

The couple was graduated from Clintonville High School. Miss Conlon is employed at the Urban Telephone Co. Her fiancé is employed at the Murphy Construction Co., New London.

Miss Schultz Guest of Honor At Showers

Miss Jana Lea Schultz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Schultz, Manitowoc, has been guest of honor at several recent bridal showers. She will be married Saturday to Ronald Olm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Olm, 1615 W. Spencer St.

A miscellaneous shower was held Oct. 15 at the home of Mrs. Peter Wegner, Manitowoc. Mrs. Henry Gates was co-hostess. The bride-elect's wedding attendants were hostesses at an Oct. 27 linen shower at Grand Chute Town Hall. They are Miss Mary Lecker, Appleton, Miss Fay Tanck, Egg Harbor, and Miss Geri Jergenson, Manitowoc.

Mrs. Arthur Olm, Mrs. Herman Olm and Mrs. William Fischer were hostesses at a kitchen shower Thursday at the Roy Olm residence.

Committee. "These women are the ones who do the actual work for the party."

Mrs. Emory Ireland, women's chairman of the Massachusetts Republican Committee, says women are ideally suited for political work because "they have a lot of patience and they are usually good organizers. They are sociable and politics requires this."

Whatever the women do, from managing campaigns to passing out handbills, their parties appreciate them. Dorothy McHugh, New York's Republican co-chairman, sums it up:

"I would love to sing the praises of volunteers to the skies. They're the unsung heroines of every election, doing hard, grinding work and never complaining. They ask for nothing but to serve. I don't think you'd get that many men to give all that time."

Get More From Shopping Dollar by Reading Labels

Take time to read labels when you shop. Often you'll find recipes and ideas for storage on food products. Labels tell you what's in food and help you get more for your shopping dollars.

Certain facts must be stated on labels in keeping with the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act. Labels must tell, for example, what's in the package or can; where the product was made; the style of pack and the net contents by weight or liquid measure.

Ingredients should be listed on labels from most to least. If you see water, fruit puree, fruit juice and sugar listed on a label, you can expect more water in the product than fruit juice. It's wise to compare listing of ingredients and nutritive values claimed when buying food.

Follow Label Recipes
Some cooks ruin their dishes by not reading label recipes. In a prepared cake mix, you may have a heavy, overmoist cake if you use milk when water is called for in the label directions. Your bread may not rise properly if you use dry yeast after the expiration date has passed.

Chemical names listed on package labels may appear long and dangerous. Rest assured, however, that chemicals have been tested and approved for use in foods by the Federal Food and Drug Administration. The use of some of these additives make food more palatable, offer more variety and make food definitely safer.

Food standards set the minimum quantity of food that may be put in a container. Packages are required to hold as much as possible without damaging the contents. Fill of Container standards apply to products that may shake down or settle after filling, or to products made up of a number of units or pieces packed in a liquid. Consumers wonder at times why packages are not tightly filled to the top. Different amounts of space are needed to maintain product quality and protect the product through market channels.

Package sizes can be perplex-

Mother's Society Plans Bread Sale

ing. Read net weight statements and figure out how much you're paying for each ounce. You should see net weight statements clearly and prominently on packages. Sometimes larger packages are best buys if you have home storage space. Other times you'll find no difference in price between small or large packages of the same product.

Each time you select food from your favorite market, you are casting your vote for repeat manufacture of the same size and type of product. Be an informed voter. Read labels and know why you are making your choices.

Parents Tell Engagement Of Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Hansen, Fullerton, Calif., formerly of Neenah, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Beth, and Wayne Malone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley E. Malone, Fullerton.

The couple was graduated from Fullerton Junior College. Miss Hansen is a junior at Orange State College, Fullerton. Her fiancé is a senior at California State Polytechnic College, San Luis Obispo, Calif.

A summer wedding is planned.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

In these days of modern travel we ones often fly before they walk. If you take a "flyer" with baby, it's helpful to remember these hints:

- When you make reservations, alert the airline about baby—for the stewardess' convenience and yours.
- A bottle at take-off time is desirable. Sucking distracts baby and relieves discomfort sometimes caused by altitude changes.
- A favorite toy helps while away flying time when baby's awake.

At or away from home, I think you'll find Gerber Baby Pants a blessing for both baby and you. They have built-in comfort and protection because they're made of whisper-soft polyvinyl film that's waterproof, leak-proof, acid-proof.

Yes, Gerber baby pants are machine washable... will last (and stay soft) through many, many washings. Medium, large, extra-large, in pull-on or snap-on styles.

Stay-put strategy. Why is it that babies bounce around best when you're getting them dressed or diapered? Guess clothes just plain "cramp their style." Diversions that may help to still those squirms: (1) A favorite squeak toy to hold or a Gerber Teething Biscuit to munch. (2) A spot of lively music from you or your radio. (3) Assorted funny faces or silly sounds.

A nutrition memo from Dan Gerber, "Improving the food values of your baby's vegetables is a continuing Gerber research project. Take Gerber Carrots. In one experiment alone, 30 varieties of carrots were grown to find the ones with the highest vitamin-A value and the best flavor and color. After harvesting, each variety was processed, evaluated for nutritive values and color, then flavor-tested by taste experts." Gerber Baby Foods, Farmington, Michigan.

schools and probably spread his caviar with the wrong kind of knife. Nowadays, at contract bridge, even the nicest people lead singletons and you have to know how to protect yourself against such sneaky business.

West opened the seven of diamonds, the cad. East won with the ace of diamonds and returned the queen of diamonds.

South bravely played the king of diamonds, and West ruffed. That was the end of the hand for poor South. He struggled on until the last card was played, but he had to lose two more diamond tricks.

More Courage

South showed more courage than judgment when he played the king of diamonds at the second trick. His haste cost him the game and rubber.

To begin with, there was no mystery about the opening lead. The seven of diamonds was either a singleton or low from J-9-7. In either case South could lose nothing by playing a low diamond at the second trick.

See what happens if East is allowed to win the second trick with the queen of diamonds. If East continues with a low diamond, South plays low; West ruffs, but South eventually wins a trick with the king of diamonds. If East continues at the third trick with the jack of diamonds, South covers with the king; West ruffs, but dummy eventually wins a trick with the ten of diamonds.

Declarer makes the contract if he manages to get one diamond trick. He can surely win a diamond if he plays low at the second trick.

Answer: Bid two clubs. This is a rescue, not the Stayman Convention. Your bid shows a long club suit in a weak unbalanced hand. If you were looking for a game you would redouble first.

Swedish Girl Drivers Ursula Wirth and Ewy Rosquist embrace after making auto racing history in Argentina. They won the Argentine Standard grand prix in Buenos Aires. The pair arrived in Argentina last month with West Germany's Mercedes Benz team, unnoticed and unheralded. They then proceeded to beat practically every male driver in sight and were the first ever to capture all six laps of the gruelling, 11-day road race. (AP Wirephoto)

The Answer: As a general rule, a high hairline. To conceal the glasses do not limit a hairstyle. Not if both are becoming. But there are instances that prove the rule, and a high hairline is one of them.

The problem is solved by raising the bangs. To do this, start the bangs farther back on your

Today's Etiquette

BY LOUISE DAVIS

Dear Louise: A couple came to dinner with us for the first time, and the husband refused my roast beef when it was passed. Next time they came, he didn't take any of my good fried chicken. Much later his wife informed me that he is a vegetarian. Don't you think she might have saved us all embarrassment by telling me so in the first place?

Louise Davis Answers:

No, not unless you asked when inviting the couple the first time if either of them happen to be allergic to any foods or if either is on a special diet. You can be sure that your two experiences happened to other hostesses who didn't know that the man is a vegetarian. You can also be sure that he is quite accustomed to the serving of meat wherever he goes and that neither he nor his wife would dream of expecting a hostess to change her menu because of him.

It would hardly be fair to the non-vegetarian wife, your husband, you and your other guests for you to have a meatless dinner. No one would expect you to. Undoubtedly you had enough vegetables and a salad to satisfy the man's appetite.

FRIENDS NEED COMFORT

Dear Louise: I have just discovered that the funeral of the mother of a friend was yesterday. I wish to send a note of sympathy, but have been told that it is too late. Is this correct?

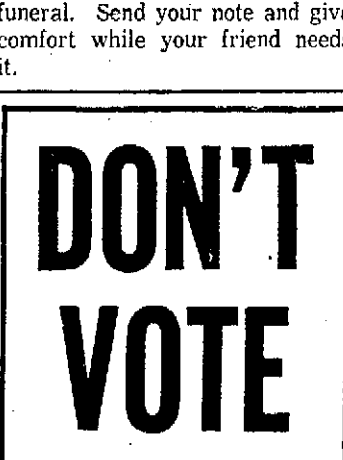

Louise Davis Answers:

No. Grief doesn't end with the funeral. Send your note and give comfort while your friend needs it.

Three Times and Out; Mother Decries Bums' Rush of Girls

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: I wouldn't have believed it could happen to me a third time—but it has. My youngest daughter eloped with a fellow she met two months ago at the beach. This gives me a perfect record. I am now the mother-in-law of three bums.

All my girls are beautiful and have lovely figures. This is not just mother-love. They have all won beauty contests. (The oldest won a state title.) My girls are intelligent, they hold fine jobs and could have made good marriages. But, no, they go for men who can't make a living, and kick them around besides.

My oldest daughter has left her husband three times since March. She is never without a black eye or a bruise. The middle girl came home with her suitcase and a broken collar-bone. Her husband drinks and goes off his rocker every Friday night. And now my youngest daughter married a loafer who'd rather collect unemployment compensation than work.

Please explain why girls deliberately choose abusive and unworthy men?—H.S.M.

Dear H.S.M.: Some girls think they can turn that sow's ear into a silk purse. They don't realize that after the bloom is off the romance, any attempt at reform is considered nagging.

Psychiatrists tell us that women who put up with repeated physical abuse are sick. They feel worthless and inferior, and they unconsciously seek out men who will punish them.

I'm afraid I haven't helped you feel any better, mother, but I've tried to answer your question honestly.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a married woman 44, with a lovely family. I've known for six months that I need surgery. I have been putting it off until I've run out of excuses.

The reason I am avoiding the operation is because I'm afraid of what I might say under an anesthetic. My husband is the attentive type who would insist on being with me every minute. If I started to talk I could ruin myself.

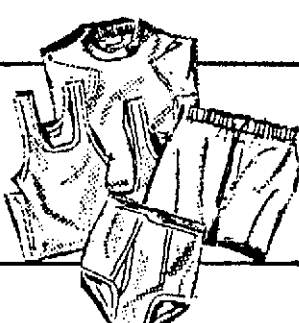

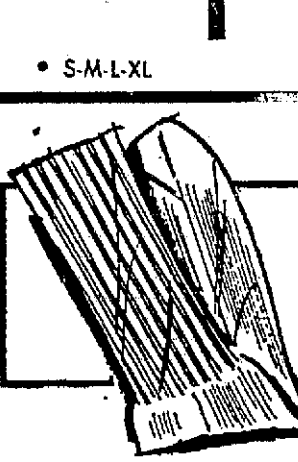

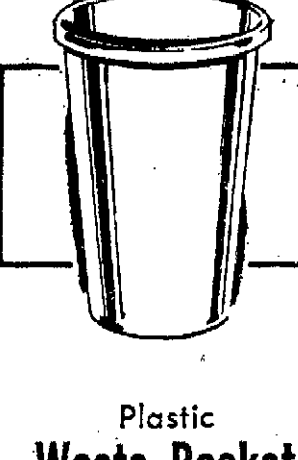

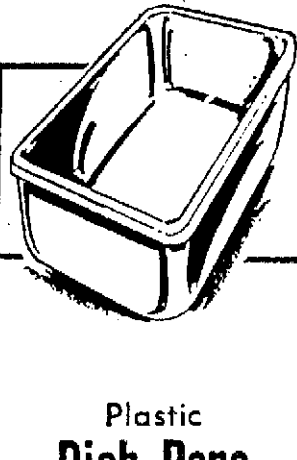

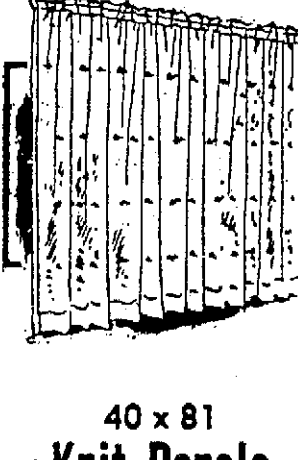

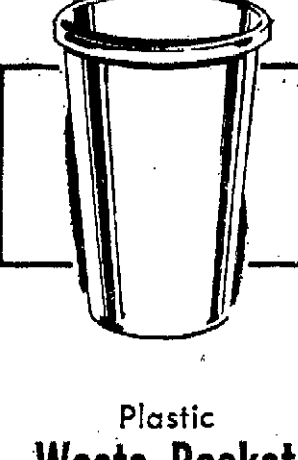

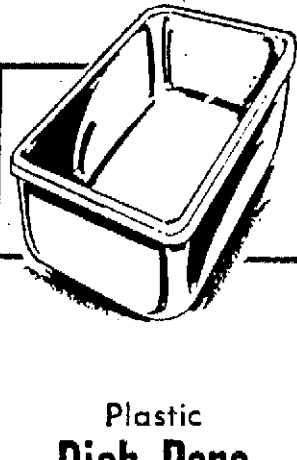

I can't discuss this with anyone for obvious reasons. Please tell me what to do. There must be a solution but I don't see it.—D. Prest

Dear D.: You can discuss this with your doctor in complete confidence. The problem will not be new to him. (It isn't new to me either. Some

There are several alternatives from which to choose. The simplest solution would be for your doctor to bar all relatives from the hospital until your surgery has been completed and you have gained consciousness.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was cheered when I read the letter in your column recently from the lady who was against back-zippers. For years I've been frustrated because I didn't know where to take my pet peeve. Now I know!

Will you please tell me why linen manufacturers insist on making square table cloths (particularly in small sizes) when square tables went out of style 35 years ago? Square tables don't fit into the modern home anymore. I haven't seen one in a store in my adult life. And I'm no spring chicken.

I hope you will print my letter and shake up the big shots who run the looms in this country. Thank you. —Bernadette

Dear Bernadette: Have you ever tried to iron a round tablecloth? Well I have and I'll take a square one any day.

Although my dining room table is round I use only square cloths and they look lovely.

Incidentally, my spies in the furniture business tell me square tables are still available although round and oval tables outsell the squares and rectangular about 20 to 1.

Secretarial Role Explained at NSA Workshop

The Fox Cities Chapter of the National Secretaries Association (International) served as hostess to a "Secretarial Workshop" Saturday at the 41 Bowl for members of the district.

Registration and a coffee hour were held at 9 a.m. Mrs. Mary Lyons, chairman of the education committee, had charge of the workshop.

Dr. Alan H. Townsend, chief psychologist at the Community Guidance Center of Outagamie County, spoke at 9:30 a.m. on "Danger—Women at Work." "The Secretary and Her Money" was discussed by Mrs. Leone Davis, CPS, assistant cashier and women's service officer at the First National Bank of Appleton.

A tour of the exhibit of business machinery was held at 11:45. Mrs. Loraine Rentner, president of the Fox Cities Chapter, spoke during the 12:15 p.m. luncheon.

J. Joseph Cummings, Appleton attorney-at-law, spoke at 1:30 p.m. on "Law—Business and Personal." George A. Rushton, personnel division of Kimberly - Clark Corp., spoke on "The Eye of the Beholder" at the 2:30 session.

The Ailing House Conversion Into Lamps Inexpensive

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: How can I lighten a parchment lamp shade? It has become darker and the light from it therefore is not as good as it used to be. I have always cleaned it with a mild soap suds solution.

A: Try adding a mild solution of household bleach to the soap suds solution, then rinse thoroughly with clear water to remove all trace of the bleach. Or, after cleaning the shade, moisten it with a three per cent solution of hydrogen peroxide, allowing it to remain a few minutes, then rinsing off with clear water. Several treatments may be necessary.

Light Staining Dark Veneer

Q: We have a dark thin-veneer chest of drawers which we want to move to our bedroom. We have light colored bedroom furniture. How can we stain the veneer a lighter color?

A: Caution must be observed not to apply too much water which might affect the adhesive and loosen the veneer. Apply a commercial wood bleach, following label directions carefully, after first removing the present finish down to bare wood. Allow the wood to dry thoroughly, then sand smooth and wipe off all dust. Use a wax-effect wood stain, in the desired shade, according to manufacturer's instructions.

Vases Into Lamps

Q: I have a pair of fairly large vases which I would like to convert into lamps for end tables at either end of a long sofa. Can this be done without having to drill holes in the bottom of the vase?

A: Yes. Lamp conversion units, in various sizes, are available at variety and hardware stores and some housewares dealers, making it a comparatively easy job and no longer necessary to drill holes for installing the wires. Inexpensive, too!

Musty Odor In Piano

Q: We have an upright piano in our basement recreation room. The basement is very dry, but with a three per cent solution of hydrogen peroxide, allowing it to remain a few minutes, then rinsing off with clear water. Several treatments may be necessary.

A: The felt pads have probably become mildewed; no matter how dry a basement seems, a certain amount of dampness is always present. The pads probably need replacement; this should be done by a professional. Keeping an electric damp chaser in the piano may help greatly to avoid the development of mildew. This is an aluminum covered, rod-shaped appliance which is plugged into an electric outlet and keeps small enclosed spaces dry, by slightly warming the air and keeping it circulating. It is frequently installed in TV sets and closets for this purpose.

Cooperation Keynote to Success

BY JUDY BARDEN

BAD GODESBERG, GERMANY

— Mrs. Katie Louchheim, deputy assistant secretary of state for public affairs, started a group of German women correspondents here recently.

This young-looking grandmother from Washington, D. C., who is in charge of women's projects, told her German listeners:

"American women no longer compete with their husbands, they co-operate."

One of the German reporters was still puzzling over this as we left the Rhine-side home of Mrs. Brewster Morris, wife of the American minister here.

"We have always tried to co-operate," the German girl said. "Only recently have we been allowed to compete."

Need Cooperation

Mrs. Louchheim said also that no man can succeed in public life unless he has a wife who co-operates with him. The wives of German officials are still inclined to stay in the background. Most women who make an impact on public affairs in Germany do it on their own.

Mrs. Morris, as hostess, added to the visitors' astonishment. She served the coffee, cookies and cigarettes herself. Many Germans still picture Americans abroad as being waited on by servants at all times.

Mrs. Louchheim, the first woman to reach her rank in the State department, was overseas on a speaking tour. Before coming to Bonn, she spent a few days in Berlin, about whose women, she said, "Their courage is, and has been, magnificent."

She urged that German mothers encourage their children to take a more active part in political affairs.

She pointed out that some time 7,000 students come to Washington every summer to take summer jobs and learn something about life in their capital city.

Appleton's Shoe Corner

AP Women's Editor
NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Benjamin Spock, considered as indispensable as a diaper pin by most young parents, gives them further aid and comfort with his diagnosis of today's children: "fundamentally sound."

One way you can tell they're sound, he said the other day, is by how they study—"Longer, harder, with more judgment and showing maturity in their extracurricular interests."

As reassuring in person as he is in print, Dr. Spock has a craggy, good-humored face and a rangy, 6-foot-4 frame. He's the author of probably the best-thumbed manual in America—a book on baby and child care that has sold 13 million copies—and a just-published volume "Problems of Parents."

"Many parents still are going through more strain, worry and suffering than they need to in bringing up children," he said.

If you're tempted to worry about the younger generation, he advises comparing it with the youngsters of the 20s when he was going to school.

Serious Student Was Out

"The serious student was frowned on by everybody, and the only approved things were prom, clothes and sports. I not only approved of these things," the former Yale man added with a grin, "but I applied myself with great earnestness."

He admitted there is more delinquency today but "most of it is insignificant pranks, moderately destructive. Studies asking leading citizens what they did as adolescents show that 90 per cent did these things."

Accompanied by his wife, Dr. Spock was on his way to Cambridge, Mass., to see his two sons and make a few speeches in behalf of H. Stuart Hughes, Harvard history professor running for the Senate as an independent.

Important Issue

"I'm sure I'll disturb and alienate parents by insisting this is important too. But I simply can't stay in the nursery when I have such strong feelings. The problem of achieving peace can't just be talked about; we must support the candidates working for peace."

Dr. Spock, who teaches child development at Western Reserve Medical School in Cleveland, Ohio, is no longer in private practice. So perplexed parents call his wife Jane for advice.

"I don't give it," she said shaking her head firmly. "I suggest they ask their pediatrician to recommend a psychiatrist. I'm even very careful not to give advice about my grandsons, although that's hard."

Mother of Two

They are Danny 3½ and Peter 1½, sons of 29-year-old Michael, who, after teaching at Antioch College, is back at Harvard to get a master's degree. The Spock's younger son, John, 18, is in his first year there.

"You could say I had two only children," said Mrs. Spock, a slim, graying-haired woman with a gentle smile. "Mike was 11 when John was born. Mike was brought up in the old-fashioned way—Ben was just an intern—fed every four hours, cry an hour before feeding, that sort of thing. John was brought up entirely differently—on a self demand schedule and so forth. I don't know how relevant it is, but it was easier for John to adjust to college."

Sons of Famous Man

It's hard to be sons of a famous man, she added, especially of Dr. Spock, that last word on child behavior. "Everyone expects them to be perfect; well they're human and can have tantrums just like anyone else."

Said Dr. Spock: "I was brought up quite strictly, and I protest vehemently the conclusion by some that I'm a permissivist. As a Needcraft Catalog—just out!—Fashions, furnishings to crochet, true I'm a permissivist. I only knit, sew, weave, embroider, quilt, believe in understanding the child."

Many-Dutied Attic Room

The attic was remodelled to turn waste space to many uses, but it wouldn't be in such constant use if it weren't so cheerfully light. Windows out of view can do just so much, then a white floor, almost uninterrupted because the long table top is white, carries on to a completely mirrored wall which spreads brightness farther.

The mirrored wall makes the room perfect for practice for the ballet student. Simple sofa beds end-to-end settle neatly under the slanting roof line, to make overnight guests comfortable, but every member of the family uses the room for private projects just as the balletomane does. With the long table as a desk, the room becomes a hide-away for study or office homework. And the table also centers the family sewing.

Parent's World

Boy, 5, Needs Help to Face the Unfamiliar

BY DR. EVE JONES

Dear Eve Jones: We live two blocks from the school bus stop. My kindergarten-age son refuses to walk to it by himself but he gets off the bus and comes home by himself. My sister says I'm making him dependent by accompanying him to the school. I'm not sure I'll disturb and alienate parents by insisting this is important too. But I simply can't stay in the nursery when I have such strong feelings. The problem of achieving peace can't just be talked about; we must support the candidates working for peace."

Eve Jones

A 5-year-old boy is dependent. Your job is to support him, not push him out into the cold. He's bound to be more worried about going to the unfamiliar bus that takes him to the strange schools than about running toward home. If you can't arrange a private car pool or take turns with some other mothers accompanying a group to the bus stop, you should continue to walk with him until he feels confident enough to go to the bus alone.

STUTTERER NEEDS HELP

Dear Eve Jones: When my 6-

year-old son says something without thinking first, he doesn't stutter. But he stutters terribly if he tries to say something that's important to him. If I don't make him start over, he just gives up, but even this makes the stutter worse.

Stuttering is a problem that needs professional treatment. I'm sending you the name of a speech clinic where your son can obtain the care he needs. Until you have a chance to meet with the clinic staff and talk over what you should do to help him, don't insist that he start his sentences again. Just listen patiently until he tells you whatever he wants to say.

HE'LL GIVE UP PACIFIER

Dear Eve Jones: How can you get a 20-month-old boy to give up his pacifier? Can it harm him physically or emotionally?

He'll give it up when he's ready to — usually when he starts to talk a lot. It can't harm him.

RECOMMENDS A CLINIC

Dear Eve Jones: Your column ought to appear on the comic page. What makes you think a 15-year-old who asks his aunt to undress is sick? He's just as normal as he can be, but he has more gall than I had 30 years ago when I was his age. He's obviously a cool cat, and I predict he'll be a great success with the ladies as soon as he learns a bit more finesse.

MR. V. E.

I'm glad I gave you a laugh. But if you sincerely believe it's healthy for a teen-ager to do what this one did, you'd better send me your address so I can recommend a clinic for you.

LET THE JUDGE DECIDE

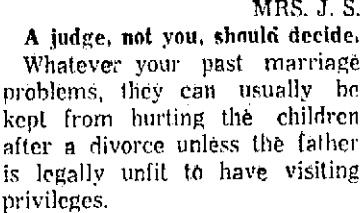

Dear Eve Jones: I disagree with your statement on the divorced father that he should visit his children. If my former husband hadn't been an emotional child, I would never have divorced him. And what good would it do my children to learn how bad their father is?

A judge, not you, should decide. Whatever your past marriage problems, they can usually be kept from hurting the children after a divorce unless the father is legally unfit to have visiting privileges.

For a free copy of a new pamphlet by Dr. Jones, "How To Keep From Having Toiletting Problems," write to her in care of the Appleton Post-Crescent, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Soviets Back Down On Cuban Missiles

Tough Attitude of President on Sites Brought Change in Policy

BY RELMAN MORIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — During their conference in Vienna last year, an odd but serious exchange took place over the luncheon table between President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev. It concerned the Bay of Pigs, scene of the star-crossed Cuban invasion, April 17, 1961.

"The Bay of Pigs was a mistake," Kennedy said, candidly. "But in the American system, we can publicly admit our mistakes."

"So can we," Khrushchev retorted. "We have publicly admitted Stalin's mistakes."

"Yes," said the President, gesturing. "But your own mistakes—?"

The question hung in the air and went unanswered. After a moment of silence, Khrushchev changed the subject.

ing Russian missiles out of Cuba in exchange for the dismantling of U.S. bases in Turkey. Kennedy said in reply, "preliminary to consideration of any proposals, work on the Cuban bases must stop. Offensive weapons must be rendered inoperable."

On the same day, a White House official told this correspondent, "The situation is very hairy (dangerous). It looks as though it will get worse, before it gets better."

At the Pentagon, some correspondents thought an invasion of Cuba might start over the weekend, or on Monday.

The atmosphere in Washington was eerie, with a sense of foreboding.

Announcement Came

Then, shortly after 9 a.m. on Sunday, Oct. 28, came the electrifying announcement from Moscow: Khrushchev agreed to dismantle the missile sites on Cuba, have the weapons crated and returned to the Soviet Union. His message referred to "previous instructions" to stop work on the nuclear bases.

Kennedy received this information from news agency teletype machines. At the Pentagon, officers tore the story from the machines, paragraph by paragraph, and rushed it to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara. In the immediate aftermath, there was no gloating at the White House, nor has there been any since.

Officials soberly waited for the next step, to see whether the Soviet promises would be kept. Attention turned toward the United Nations, where the next step would be taken. The prevailing attitude in Washington appeared to be wait and see.

Made Evaluation

In evaluating the whole powder-keg incident, officials make these points:

1. The Soviet objective in Cuba was to present the United States with a fait accompli. The work on the missile bases was pushed so feverishly that the objective might have been reached in another few days. The Cuban bases, in themselves, did not change the balance of nuclear striking power between the United States and the Soviet Union. But, as a top official put it, "they were setting up

But the original Soviet reaction to Kennedy's proclamation of the quarantine of shipments of offensive weapons to Cuba was a rejection and warning.

Moscow radio broadcast a note which said: "The Soviet government resolutely rejects such claims (the U.S. right to blockade Cuba). The arrogant actions of American imperialism could lead to disastrous consequences to all mankind."

Then, little by little, the Soviet line appeared to be changing, easing off.

Khrushchev replied to a message from the British philosopher, Bertrand Russell, saying he would take no "rash action." On Wednesday, Oct. 24, it was reported that some Soviet-bloc ships had changed course, avoiding the blockade zone. On Friday, Khrushchev said he would not send any more ships into the blockade area for the time being.

Hinted Agreement

A still unpublished message from Khrushchev on Friday "hinted," as an administration official puts it, that he might agree to removing the missiles from Cuba.

In another note however, Khrushchev suggested a horse-trade, taking

Youth Admits Hortonville Theft

A 15-year-old youth has admitted he took $250 from a back-bar cash box at the Hotel Hoffman in Hortonville Friday night. The youth has been turned over to the Outagamie County welfare department.

George Leist, Hortonville, reported the money missing early Saturday morning to the Outagamie County Sheriff's Department. Lt. Jack Zuelzke and Hortonville Police Chief Douglas Jones questioned several suspects before the money was found in the lining of a coat owned by the youth.

eight or 10 sites for 30 or 40 missiles. If they were allowed to proceed, why not 10 more sites? That could very well have made a difference.

2. The consequences, in official thinking, would have been to encourage the Soviet Union to take a stronger line on Berlin and in all Latin America.

3. For over a year, in spite of the Vienna conferences between Kennedy and Khrushchev, qualified observers have said they did not believe the Russians were convinced the United States would fight, if necessary, over these super-important areas in the world.

4. In his reply to Khrushchev's message about removing the missiles from Cuba and dismantling the sites, Kennedy said: "I agree with you that we must devote urgent attention to the problem of disarmament as it relates to the whole world and also to critical areas. Perhaps now, as we step back from danger, we can together make real progress in this vital field."

Is it possible that the Cuban episode might lead to a gradual turn-around in the whole pattern of the cold war, a solution to disputes that now seem insoluble?

British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan touched on this point in a statement in the House of Commons, Oct. 30. He pointed out that Khrushchev agreed to international verification to determine if the Soviet missile bases in Cuba were de-fanged.

Having accepted the principle there, he said, the Russians may be able to accept it in other areas such as disarmament.

"The world has had a shock," Macmillan said. "We have been very near the edge."

Background on Cuban Crisis Finally Told

Columnist Claims President Acted Much Too Late

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Now that the election campaign is over, the American people are entitled to know the truth about the missile build-up in Cuba — how closely they came to being the victims of a nuclear attack and another "Pearl Harbor."

Is it possible that the United States didn't have reliable intelligence and had to wait for aerial photography, which can often be frustrated by weather conditions? All the facts have not as yet been disclosed, but the facts that are available put the Administration in a position of having taken grave chances with the security of the United States. A case of sheer negligence, if not incompetence, can be made out, and that's why, in fairness to the Administration, any facts available that can convincingly rebut such inferences should be revealed.

The American people are partly responsible for the dilemma. They countenance changes in key personnel at the top in national defense and security when there is a political change of Administration. Continuity in certain posts is imperative in an era of crisis, especially in a nuclear age.

Really Had Facts

A factual analysis of what happened could show that the United States government really had the facts, but that President Kennedy and his group of advisers did not evaluate them correctly. It is doubtful whether any military man in the group failed to size up accurately what was happening. The lesson—unwittingly revealed before NBC's TV panel, "Meet the Press," last Sunday—was expressed by T. C. Sorensen, one of the small group that sits in with the President in many a confidential discussion of public policy. Sorensen said:

"I think the experience of the last two or three weeks has taught us a great deal about operations inside the government—individuals, their way of thinking, institutions and departments, their way of operation."

This is a costly way of teaching government to an inexperienced administration.

The New York "Times" last Saturday published two full pages of detail about the missile build-up in Cuba as gathered by nine reporters and researchers. Even this narrative, which is unofficial, is surprising in what it discloses. It says in part:

"The Soviet military build-up in Cuba started in the second half of July. At that time American intelligence sources reported suspicious movements of Soviet ships, apparently laden with war material destined for Cuba."

"All through August, according to intelligence reports, the build-up continued. More than 30 ships unloaded 2,000 Soviet technicians and instructors and such war material as surface-to-air missiles, patrol boats with missiles and MIG-21 fighters."

It was on Sept. 4 when President Kennedy said publicly that, as far as was known, the Soviet arms in Cuba were "defensive."

The "Times" story continues:

More Told

"Within the Administration the possibility that some of the build-up was offensive was not being overlooked. The intelligence community—the Central Intelligence Agency, military intelligence and others — specifically raised the question whether there might be against Cuban bases, as any surface - to - surface missiles in military man would have advised.

Cuba with nuclear warheads. . . . The President refrained also from making any protest to the Soviet government. In those seven days, the Soviets could have attacked many American cities from Cuba.

Thanks to Khrushchev, the episode has thus far turned out all right, but do not the hazards encountered teach a lesson?

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee investigated the flight of a U-2 Plane over Russia in May, 1960, and blamed President Eisenhower for telling the truth about it and particularly for using the planes at that time. Maybe, as a consequence, the theory has been accepted that the truth must not be revealed to the American people.

What really happened between mid-July and Oct. 22, and who was to blame for the risk taken? Why were U-2 flights over Cuba suspended for a long time? Why was the naval blockade held up for a month while the Russians were unloading their missiles and planes? Congress alone can bring out the truth.

Senator Kenneth Keating of New York, Republican, said in the Senate on Oct. 10 that he had confirmed reports about the intermediate - range missile bases under construction in Cuba. These are plainly offensive in character.

But during the seven days from Tuesday, Oct. 16, through Monday, Oct. 22, the United States government did not take any action question whether there might be against Cuban bases, as any surface - to - surface missiles in military man would have advised.

Little-Known Heroes of Revolution Discussed

In "A Company of Heroes," a lengthy, well-documented book on display at the Appleton Public Library this week, Dale Van Emery recounts the brutal frontier fighting of the Revolutionary War, in which white settlers, struggling against the British and their ferocious Indian allies, held the West for the colonies.

As early as 1775 land-hungry settlers were infiltrating the "back country," an irregular region beyond the mountains extending west and south from New York into Ohio, Kentucky and Virginia. On the control of this region the outcome of the war depended, no less than on the better-known eastern campaigns of Washington and his generals.

To hold this frontier the British recruited the Indians and turned them loose on the settlers, hoping to restrain their uncertain allies from their usual atrocities. The Indians, obeying no orders, and raided as they pleased, bringing horror with them, kidnapping, scalping, torturing, burning captives alive. The settlers retaliated in kind, butchering even friendly Indians.

Two great leaders emerged from this bloody conflict—Joseph Brant, the brilliant, educated Indian, who hated Americans with cause, and the superb frontiersman, George Rogers Clark, who carried the war to such remote British settlements as Kaskaskia and Vincennes.

Little is omitted from this tale of frontier horror, and it is obviously the result of years of scholarly research.

"On the Edge of the Rift," a continuation of Mrs. Elspeth Huxley's earlier volume, "The Flame Trees of Thika," is about her childhood and adolescence in Kenya.

It begins as she and her mother are returning to Africa from England at the end of the First World War. They are to rejoin her father, who has gone ahead to resume the direction of their coffee plantation, which had been virtually abandoned during the war.

It may be difficult to believe that people were quite so amusing, or that her parents were quite so delightfully zany as Mrs. Huxley remembers them. Still, here is recreated the life of English settlers in the days long before the Mau Mau terrors and the dawn of political awareness utterly destroyed the possibility of benevolent, if patronizing, colonial rule.

Several new books take a close look at man — "Mankind Evolving" by Theodosius Dobzhansky; "Humanization of Man" by Ashley-Montagu; "Voices of Man" by Mario Pio, and "What to Tell Your Child about Birth, Death, Illness, Divorce and Other Family Crises" by Helene Arnstein.

Looking at a variety of man's interests are "David Ewen Introduces Modern Music," "Com-puters" by Dan Halacy, "Let's Make Doll Furniture" by Eileen Mercer. "Shakespeare" by Dorothy Ogburn, "Jade, Stone of Heaven" by Richard Gump, "Gardening in the Shade" by Harriet Morse, "Treasury of the Gun" by Harold Peterson, "Story Behind the Painting" by Leo Rosen, and "Ventures into the Deep" by Leonard Wibberley.

Also new are "Ocean in a Teacup" by Ray Hauserman, "Old Post Road" by Stewart Holbrook, "Study of Communism" by John Hoover, "More Lives Than One" by Joseph Krutch, "Victory over Myself" by Floyd Patterson, "All the Way Down" by Vincent Riccio, and "Fire and Water" by Ashley Schiff.

New novels include "China Governess" by Margery Allingham, "Second Foundation" by Isaac Asimov, "Fail-Safe" by Eugene Burdick, "Testament of Casper Schultz" by Martin Fal-lon, "Master of Castile" by Noel Gerson, "Voices of Glory" by Davis Grubb, "Cry of the Owl" by Patricia Highsmith, "Mountain Standard Time" by Paul Horgan, "Whole Land Brimstone" by Anna Langfus, "To Be Read Before Midnight" by Ellery Queen, "Fletcher's End" by Dor-peters" by Dan Halacy, "Let's Make Doll Furniture" by Eileen Mercer. Kimberly Adds Speech Course For Students

Hope Subject Will Arouse More Critical Thinking

KIMBERLY — Added to the curriculum for the first time at Kimberly High School this year was a fundamental speech course designed to develop more critical thinking by students of themselves and others.

The course was added as another step in the curriculum enrichment program inaugurated last year. Twenty students enrolled in the class being taught by Miss Alice Sucharda and will receive one-half credit for satisfactory completion of the course. The second semester, to gain another one-half credit, students will take another new course, creative writing.

To date the students have given seven speeches including eulogies, personal experiences, demonstration speeches, nomination speeches, informative speeches, and speeches to convince, inspire, actuate and entertain.

Speeches Studied

Students have studied speeches by outstanding orators, thus learning proper organization and content for public speaking. Extensive work has been done on pantomimes and gestures to give students an insight into the importance of body movements and their effectiveness in talks.

Future projects include a study of parliamentary procedure, preparation of a television program to be aired over an area channel in January, use of the school's public address system for making announcements and giving introductory speeches for guests at luncheon programs.

Final assignment will be a 15-minute persuasive speech which will be given before a public audience composed of parents and friends of students. The instructor and school officials will evaluate course results to determine whether the class achieves a goal of better preparing students for a role in the community, helping stimulate an interest in better speech, and making students aware of the importance of having qualified people in public office.

Appleton Youth Admits Taking Two Automobiles

A 16-year-old Appleton youth is held in Outagamie County jail after he admitted he stole two automobiles over the weekend.

One car was abandoned at the foot of John Street late Friday night and the second car was abandoned in Milwaukee. The youth was caught by Milwaukee police Sunday night when they found him in an apartment house lobby trying to get warm.

The youth had abandoned a car owned by Raymond Thieme, 1516 W. Brewster St. Friday night. It was found by police Saturday. He also confessed he had taken the car owned by his stepfather and had driven it to Milwaukee where it ran out of gasoline and was abandoned.

Disposition of the youth is being handled by the Appleton police youth aid bureau.

College Trustees Told Change In Presidents Will be Smooth

Knight Says He Will Not Allow School to 'Get Rid of Him Quickly'

"There is no need for this transition between presidents to be anything but one of real tranquility and of genuine help to the college," President Douglas M. Knight assured the Lawrence College board of trustees in its semi-annual meeting Monday in Milwaukee.

Commenting on his recent election as fifth president of Duke University, Knight said, "I am not going to allow you to get rid of me quickly. The timing will be related to the Ford program. The terminal date has been set at January, 1964. It may happen that you will find your man in the next few months, and that you will be eager to get him here as soon as you can."

"I can make my life flexible to allow whatever time table seems wise for Lawrence. One of the happiest parts of this was the assurance from the Duke trustees that they would do nothing to upset my obligations or the obligations of the college. I will be here until you don't need me. There will be no gap; there will be no slack," he continued.

Compromise

"My recent decision," Knight said, "does not mean that Duke is more important than Lawrence; what it does mean is that what we do here is so important that places like Duke have to look to places like Lawrence to provide them with what they need. It is indeed the very highest compliment that could be paid Lawrence, and the greatest possible strengthening of what we do in a corporate sense."

He pointed out that the trustees will "have the help of the most discerning and knowledgeable people in the country" in the search for a new president, and that their job would be difficult because they will be faced with the task of selecting from a group of "five or 10 absolutely first-rate people."

"This is the most desirable college presidency in the United States," Knight said. "Not for the venal reason that the president always seems to go on to a university presidency, but because it gives a man the truest possible education in what a college is and the impact it can have in the United States."

College Finance

Turning to college finance, he reported that the executive committee of the board of trustees has recommended an increase of $100 in Lawrence fees next year, bringing the total cost to $2,200 per year — "a substantial amount of money."

In the late '30s, he recalled, the charges at Lawrence were $610 a year; at the same time a 1937 four-door Ford sedan, with heater, sold for $876. "In 1963," Knight said, "The same car (provided you could get one with only a heater) sells for $2,561. You will be told, of course, that it is considerably more of a car than it was; I tell you that Lawrence

Man Awaiting Trial In Jail Allowed to Cast Absentee Vote

A prisoner waiting trial in a criminal charge who sought legal advice last month to assure himself the right to vote in the November election has mailed his absentee ballot, jail officials said today.

The prisoner has been transferred to the Winnebago County jail because of a space problem in the Outagamie County jail. He mailed the ballot from Oshkosh.

The man wrote City Clerk Elden Broehm and requested an absentee ballot. He told Broehm he was awaiting trial and had not been convicted of any charges and therefore felt he was still eligible to vote.

Broehm sought the advice of the city attorney who declared the man eligible to vote. An absentee ballot was mailed to the county jail and was then forwarded to Oshkosh.

Aldermen Decide

Higher Salary Needed to Attract Works Director

MENASHA — More money will have to be offered any prospective applicant for the post of Menasha director of public works if the city is to attract a truly qualified and capable man, Menasha aldermen agreed at Monday night's committee of the whole session.

The post, which was to have become effective Sept. 18, was left vacant by the resignation of the former city engineer, Melvin J. Noth, several months ago and the subsequent rejection of the post by Ralph Becker, Fox Point engineer. The latter declined to accept the post in September, noting that "the differential in pay was too small between the Menasha Post ($9,000) and what he is now receiving."

Since Becker's rejection, Mayor John L. Klein and Menasha aldermen have been engaged in attempts to attract qualified and top-ranking applicants for the post. One was interviewed Saturday morning, it was revealed at last night's committee of the whole session, but the applicant refused to consider the post unless more money were offered: at least $10,000 per year.

"What did you think of the applicant?" Ald. Richard O. Hansen was asked. "I thought he was really worth considering, but like any really qualified and competent engineer he wants more money. And I can't blame him! Let's face it," Hansen summed up, "because of the publicity that's been attached to this whole matter, it seems that every applicant that comes here knows that we are in a fix and, as a result, they ask for a bit higher salary than usual."

It was also noted at the session that Appleton is also seeking a director of public works. To which one alderman reacted: "Maybe we could get information on some applicants from them; I understand Appleton has about 15 under consideration."

"No Dice"

"No dice," retorted another. "Appleton won't release any information on its applicants until they have contracted a director of public works themselves — and you can't blame them."

Also discussed at Monday night's committee of the whole session was the matter of possibly abolishing the Menasha Municipal Court and the post of Municipal Court Justice in favor of establishment of a Winnebago County Court, Branch Three. After some discussion, it was decided to explore the matter more thoroughly at the Nov. 19 committee of the whole session.

Also deferred for further consideration and action was the Menasha library's request for $35,000 in the 1963 budget to cover the city's share in a proposed $60,000 to $65,000 expansion and renovation project. The balance over and above the city's $35,000 share would be covered by anticipated private contributions.

Englishman To Speak at Lawrence

British Politician Ousted From Office Because of Title

Anthony Wedgwood-Benn, the brilliant and news-making young British politician, will speak in Lawrence Memorial Chapel at 10:45 a.m. Thursday on "Report from London."

After 10 years in Parliament, during which time he rose to membership of the Labour Shadow Cabinet and its national committee, he was disqualified as an M.P. on the death of his father whose Viscounty he inherited. Overwhelmingly re-elected to Parliament by his old district, he is fighting a vigorous campaign to regain his commons seat against a centuries-old tradition. This famous constitutional case, not yet finally settled, has been reported and discussed all over the world.

Recently he has travelled widely, attending conference and speaking in Europe, the Soviet Union, Africa and India as well as the United States.

Work in Britain

In Britain he is deeply involved in political work in his district, at Westminster, in the Labour Party, and as a writer and television broadcaster on current affairs. He is chairman of the International Bureau of the Fabian Society.

Married to a Cincinnati girl, Wedgwood-Benn has been a regular visitor to the United States since 1947-48 when he led the Oxford Union debating team on a nationwide tour of 60 U.S. universities. He has been producer of the BBC North American Service, and is now on the executive committee of the British-American Parliamentary Group.

Wedgwood-Benn's talk is open to the public without admission charge.

OSC Starts Scholarship Program

OSHKOSH — A special scholarship program to encourage Oshkosh State College students to choose law as their graduate study at the University of Wisconsin has been announced by Law School Dean George H. Young.

In announcing the program by mail to Dr. Herbert L. Gaede, coordinator of the OWC arts and science division, Dean Young wrote: "We at Wisconsin Law School recognize Wisconsin State College at Oshkosh as one of our important sources of entering law students. We want to encourage outstanding students from Wisconsin State at Oshkosh to choose law as their graduate study, and to pursue that study here."

Dr. Gaede said that the program will be known as the Wisconsin Law-Oshkosh Scholarship, and that it would be available each year to one or more students graduating from OSC and entering the Wisconsin Law School.

Requirements

In his letter to Dr. Gaede, Dean Young said that, an applicant must be able to show genuine financial need, must have an undergraduate grade-point average of at least 3.3 (on a 4.0 scale), must perform excellently on the Law School Admission Test, and must come highly recommended by Dr. Gaede and at least two other Oshkosh State College faculty members.

The amount of the scholarship will depend primarily on the applicant's financial need, and will normally be at least sufficient to cover tuition expenses in full. The scholarship will continue during the holder's stay at the Wisconsin Law School, subject to variation depending on need, and provided the holder maintains an excellent academic record.

Seymour Firm Low Bidder on Road Project

MRK Construction Co., Seymour, Monday was awarded a contract to furnish crushed stone to Outagamie County for construction work on County Trunk S between State Highway 55 and County Trunk C.

The County Highway Committee awarded the contract after opening bids from four firms—MRK, Murphy Construction Co., Black Creek; Koepke Sand and Gravel Co., Appleton, and Midway Sand and Gravel Co., Inc., Appleton.

Approximate cost for the project is $9,504, which includes furnishing and delivering 6,600 tons of 1½-inch crushed stone and 6,600 tons of ¾-inch crushed stone.

MRK's low bid was for 72 cents a ton, furnished and delivered.

UW Students Will Evaluate Village School

KIMBERLY — The Kimberly public school system has been selected for evaluation by students enrolled in the educational administration course at the University of Wisconsin Extension Center.

Students in the class are teachers from schools throughout the area who are taking the course as an initial step in working toward certification as school administrators.

Instructors for the course are Dr. James Lipham and Dr. Richard Rossmiller. Students are required to investigate and study

Regional Commission Chairman Says Appleton Should Employ Consultant to Solve Sewage Flow

The City of Appleton should hire a firm of consulting sanitary engineers to help solve the problem of rural sewage flowing into the city.

This was the suggestion to city officials today from Paul W. Bishop, chairman of the public works committee of the Fox Valley Planning Commission.

Several weeks ago the Appleton Board of Health received the results of a survey made last summer that showed raw sewage was flowing into the city from an estimated 40 outlying points. City officials referred the report to the regional planning commission for whatever assistance or suggestions it could give.

Technical Solution

"I believe that the solution of your pollution problem is so technical that it cannot be handled by the regional planning commission at the present time," Bishop wrote the city.

"The consulting firm employed by the commission (K. Schellie & Associates) are not specialists in sanitary engineering and it was not expected that they would be," Bishop added.

Bishop said he would suggest that a firm or firms of consulting sanitary engineers be engaged to study the conditions and work out a satisfactory method to stop the pollution.

"The public works committee of the regional planning commission would be willing to review the results of this survey to see what effect the proposed remedy would have on the future needs of this region," Bishop emphasized.

Program on Lamb Evaluation Planned

OSHKOSH — A lamb evaluation program will be held from 10:30 a.m. until noon Wednesday at the Ripon Equity Yards, according to Vernon Peroutky, Winnebago County agent.

Quin Kolb, extension animal husbandman from the University of Wisconsin, and Stanley Langshoff will lead the discussion and demonstration.

Kimberly Receives Bids on New Truck

Two Offers Rejected Because Certified Checks Not Included

KIMBERLY — The village board Monday night received four bids for a new garbage truck and one for a garbage truck refuse body and referred all bids to the board of public works for tabulation and recommendation.

Two bids on refuse bodies were rejected when they failed to include a certified check amounting to 10 per cent of the price quoted as required by specifications. Lone bid on the 16-yard refuse body was $3,197 with 30-day delivery.

Bids on trucks included $3,650 for an International, $4,750 and $4,600 for a White Truck, $3,250 for a GMC and $5,779 for a Mack Truck. All bids included trade-in allowance for the 1957 vehicle now in use.

The board entered into agreement with Van Daalwyk Construction Company for rental of a tractor, endloader and backhoe for the winter. The village guaranteed a base rate of $450 with a $5 per hour rental fee after the guarantee amount is used. The equipment is stored in the village garage to assist in snow removal or used by the water department in event of winter water main breaks.

Change Code

Board members approved a change in the plumbing code whereby it will be required to use 4-inch cast iron pipe for drains under basement floors. Some builders have used 2-inch pipe which later causes trouble, noted board members.

Approval was given to appropriating $400 for the purchase of a civil defense warning signal which would be adapted into the existing village alarm system. Board members voted to hold a public hearing on the 1963 budget at 7 p.m. Dec. 10 followed by a special meeting of the village board.

Mrs. B. J. Ouellette was approved as librarian for 1963 and the clerk was instructed to notify the state retirement board concerning her certification. A tentative plat of the Riverview Heights Estate submitted by Van Daalwyk Land Developers was referred to the planning commission.

The village clerk was authorized to purchase a stamp and use this made known, rather used mainly to ascertain knowledge gained from the course. The evaluation centage used for various agencies, must include a study of the community, school district, board of education and administrative organization.

Foes Say Armory Telephone Campaign Fell 'Flat on Face'

Alderman Claims Menasha Council in Middle of C.C. Battle

MENASHA — "The recent telephone campaign, concerning the Menasha taxpayers on the armory controversy, was a failure," Alderman Robert M. Mielke said.

The proposed ordinance was also viewed with tentative disfavor by Ald. Ernest R. Koerner, who read to the Council committee a recent Post-Crescent article on the topic. The article, Koerner pointed out, suggested that teen-agers would only drive to neighboring communities if they were not allowed to buy beer here. "What would develop then," Koerner emphasized, "is a situation that none of us want: a combination of driving and drinking."

This was the summation of Ald. Louis B. Gammey, chairman of the Menasha Council's committee of the whole session Monday night, after most aldermen revealed that they had received few or no telephone calls from phone campaign, concerning the Menasha taxpayers on the armory controversy.

C of C Battle
"As far as I'm concerned," Gammey continued, "this whole matter of providing an armory site has developed into nothing but a battle between the Chamber of Commerce of Neenah-Menasha as opposed to Appleton. And the Menasha Council is caught in between."

'Hooked' Truck Damages Car

Two vehicles were damaged and the driver of a truck was summoned for inattentive driving Monday in a freak property damage accident in the 700 block of Wisconsin Ave.

Harry L. Wilson, 51, 1115 N. Harrison St., reported to police his truck was parked between vehicles owned by Weldon O. Maves, 49, 1115 W. College Ave., and Arnold L. Storzer, 2509 N. Owaissa St. Wilson attempted to move his truck, and caught the bumper of Maves' truck and pulled it 60 feet from the curb, striking Storzer's car and damaging it.

Wilson received an order to appear in Outagamie County Traffic Court Friday.

Elephants and Dems Just Don't Jibe

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Republicans and Democrats clashed in a battle of signs, insults and fists in front of state Democratic headquarters here Monday night.

Republicans held a torchlight parade to the courthouse to hear senatorial candidate B. Hayden Crawford, who is opposing Sen. Mike Monroney, D-Okla.

Three elephants had been borrowed from a circus for the parade. But they didn't catch up until the paraders reached the courthouse, across the street from Democratic headquarters.

The driver of the van unloaded the elephants as Crawford began to speak to about 2,000 Republicans. At this point, temptation proved too strong for someone.

Crawford said a man ran out of Democratic headquarters and stuck an Atkinson (Democratic gubernatorial candidate W. P. Atkinson) sticker on the back of a Republican girl.

"She protested, of course," Crawford said. "Then a gentleman stepped up to defend her and the two men really went at it."

A spokesman for Atkinson told it this way:

A woman supporter of Republican gubernatorial candidate Henry Bellmon stuck a Bellmon sign on a Democratic headquarters window. A Democratic woman retaliated by pasting a "Vote Democratic" sticker on a Republican car.

A Young Republican waved his "club-like" torch at the woman. A 19-year-old Democrat intervened and the two young men exchanged blows.

Police prevented further fighting. They also impounded the elephants.

Appleton C of C To Hear Address

The second joint meeting of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce and service clubs will be at 12 noon Nov. 27.

Sid L. Horman, vice president of Time Insurance Co. and newly-elected president of the Wisconsin State Chamber of Commerce, will be the speaker.

Committee Takes No Action on Requests Related to Straightening of Intersection

Unless the common council decides to include the necessary funds in a future bond issue, it appears nothing will be done in 1963 to relocate Meade Street at its intersection with Wisconsin Avenue.

The council's street-sanitation committee, meeting at city hall Monday, took no action on two items connected with the major street renovation project which has been talked about over a period of years.

A letter from the Northside Advancement Association, Inc., requesting immediate action to straighten out the intersection, was held by the committee for further study.

The committee took the position that it could take no immediate action, and will wait for the common council to appropriate money for such a project before doing anything further.

Funds Requested
A resolution by Ald. George Buckley requesting funds in the 1963 budget to proceed with the Meade Street relocation, met a similar fate with no action being taken.

In other action, the committee placed on file on a complaint from LeRoy Schoening Jr. against the city's action in closing Front Street to westbound traffic.

Recommended some support be placed on the hillside on the north side of Cedar Street from Mason Street east as far as necessary.

Decided the installation of storm sewers from Sixth Street to the Fox River on State Street be included in the capital improvement program, or a bond issue.

Acting Public Works Director Henry Crowe described the project as "an expensive proposition."

Discussed the need for better "policing" of contractors to insure that they won't clutter the streets with mud and debris. Aldermen have been getting complaints. Some thought an ordinance to deal with the problem was adopted last year but discovered the matter never graduated from the discussion stage.

Commander to Visit
MENASHA — The grand commander of the state, Elmer Krueger from Eau Claire, will attend the meeting or "scratch" of the Military Order of Cooties, Sept. 8, Pup Tent 17, of Menasha-Neenah Wednesday night. The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. at the VFW Club.

Menasha May Not Change Beer Law

Alderman Backs Stand Of Youths

MENASHA — "I don't think that all teen-agers between the ages of 18 and 21 should be penalized because of the trouble caused by just a few," said Alderman Robert M. Mielke in reaction to a proposal that Menasha adopt an ordinance which would raise from 18 to 21 the minimum age at which persons could buy beer in the city.

The proposed ordinance was also viewed with tentative disfavor by Ald. Ernest R. Koerner, who read to the Council committee a recent Post-Crescent article on the topic. The article, Koerner pointed out, suggested that teen-agers would only drive to neighboring communities if they were not allowed to buy beer here. "What would develop then," Koerner emphasized, "is a situation that none of us want: a combination of driving and drinking."

"Yes, I believe there is a way," Steffens answered. "It would seem to me that one way, and perhaps the only legal way, would be for the City of Menasha to draft and pass an ordinance which would require all persons seeking a class B beer license to also take out and use a class B liquor license, or vice versa. What this would mean, in essence," Steffens explained, "is that either one of the two licenses would not be obtained and used without the other: so that it prevents the sale of beer to persons 18 to 21 in bars and nightclubs — except, of course, when they are accompanied with a parent, guardian or some other legally responsible adult — but it does not prohibit the sale and consumption of beer by 18 to 21-year-old persons from other sources: liquor stores and the like."

The reconstruction of College Avenue from Rankin to Story Streets will create a traffic problem in the downtown area, Stoegebauer says.

Stoegebauer, who favors the College Avenue project, said once the new parking ramp is completed, Walnut Street will have to be converted from a one-way to a two-way thoroughfare.

The alderman cites Walnut Street presently is a one-way street to W. Washington Street, which also figures in the city's renovation plans.

Information Received
Stoegebauer says he also has received information from the water department that when it comes time for erecting a new tower, it will have to be placed in the area of the present location — Washington and Walnut Streets.

In his resolution, Stoegebauer says the water department should purchase property directly north of abutting the railroad property for the proposed new tower. The old tower eventually will be dismantled.

The resolution further calls for W. Washington Street to be extended south of the railroad tracks at an angle parallel with the tracks onto State Street.

Stoegebauer said "action on opening W. Franklin Street from N. State Street to N. Division Street should not be delayed."

Stoegebauer's resolution came almost $1,000 from two labor unions where she worked as a council's street-sanitation committee Monday and action was deferred.

Both groups felt any action retary for the AFL-CIO Local would be premature because the 1975 and Local 765 of the United Wisconsin Public Service Commission is conducting a hearing here Meyer Burstein and Sons Co., Nov. 14 on the city's request for a grade crossing, extension of Washington Street and renovation of Franklin Street.

Hearing Set On Bridge For Menasha

Will Record Talks On Structure Over Twin Cities Lake

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON—Feasibility of a new bridge across Little Lake Butte des Morts in the City of Menasha will be explored by the state highway department at a public hearing in Menasha Nov. 27, the department announced here.

The hearing will be at the Elks club in Menasha at 10 a.m. Purpose of the hearing is to make a record of testimony on the feasibility of the proposed new span at what would be Ninth street extended in the City of Menasha, prospective costs, needs in relation to Fox Valley metropolitan area development and traffic patterns present and prospective.

Petition for Bridge
The City of Menasha several months ago petitioned for the new structure, relating it to the area development needs as outlined by the regional planning commission. State highway department technicians are also expected to testify on the details of the proposal, including its costs. Under the state special bridge act, there is provision for the sharing of costs of such projects by the county and the sponsoring city government.

On the basis of the record as made at the hearing, and on the conclusions of its own engineering staff, the highway commission will later make a decision on the need for the bridge, and possibly list it in the annual budget for a forthcoming fiscal year.

On the basis of the record as made at the hearing, and on the conclusions of its own engineering staff, the highway commission will later make a decision on the need for the bridge, and possibly list it in the annual budget for a forthcoming fiscal year.

$5 Million Addition Set by Nicolet Co.

Building to House Paper Machine, Supercalender, Water Plant

Post-Crescent News Service
DE PERE — Expansion costing more than $5 million was announced today by the Nicolet Paper Co., of West De Pere.
Construction will commence immediately on a building to house a new high-speed 160-inch paper machine designed to increase mill capacity by about 10,000 tons annually. Nicolet is a leading producer of glassine, greaseproof and specialty sulphite papers.
The current expansion includes a building to house the new paper machine and a new supercalender. An additional building will be erected to accommodate a new and modern water treating plant, the announcement states.

is considerably more of a college than it was."
"We are setting up a good deal of support for our students which goes along with these increased costs," the Lawrence president pointed out. "It is still a problem; we do not want to make a college education simply the privilege of the few who happen by accident of birth to be able to afford it. . . (The growth in Lawrence's scholarship funds, makes it) more possible than it was ten years ago for the student of limited means to have an education at Lawrence. This takes part of the sting, at least, out of our high charges."
Time Base
He suggested that sometime in the next few years, Lawrence may consider setting up a longer time base than four years for paying for the cost of a college education, perhaps six to eight years to pay.
In addition to assuring a range of economic background by increased scholarship programs, Knight said Lawrence would continue to seek a range of social background, so the college would not be "merely the happy home of the upper middle class," and guarantee a range of competence in the student body so they would not be merely one type.
"You may be assured that there will always be the 'C' students as well as the 'A' students at Lawrence. Where, as someone has said, would the presidents of the United States come from if no 'C' students were admitted to college?" Knight pointed out.
College Faculty
The Lawrence president devoted part of his report to the nature of a college faculty.
"There is always the fear on the part of the faculty that trustees are only men of money; there is the fear on the part of the trustees that the faculty is composed only of dangerous leftists."
"It is important," he went on, "that the faculty members recognize that trustees are men or women of real influence in the communities in which they live; the trustees, on the other hand, must recognize that a faculty member is someone who will pursue relentlessly, but responsibly, an idea that we may not understand—not as a propagandist, but as some one who in the end will admit the fact when he finds himself wrong. You do not want the kind of faculty who are propagandizers; you do want a faculty who will stand up for their beliefs, who will disagree with presidents, deans and trustees. Otherwise, your presidents will have failed you; they will have found for you faculty who are very-dull people."
Addressing himself finally to the major fund-raising effort on which the college is now embarking, President Knight said, "As we do all we can to land the program our support, it becomes a very feasible goal. Our power to give will vary enormously, but if we each take our part, it will work out. I am not filled with fears about the college at all. I that in the long run I have added, hope you will feel assured that I shall go on doing the job that Lawrence needs in the months as the move I am going to make."

Appleton Getting Set Preparations Made For Removal of Snow

The City of Appleton expects to be in the snow business any day now and preparations are underway to cope with the white stuff.
The council's street-sanitation committee Monday recommended purchase of a new interchangeable snow thrower from Drott Tractor Co., Milwaukee, for $8,325.
Aldermen all but panicked a few weeks ago when Acting Public Works Director Henry Crowe said two pieces of snow removal equipment had not been repaired during the summer months and were not in usable condition.
The diesel unit snow thrower will be delivered to Appleton within the next 10 days after the council approves the purchase Wednesday night.
Once equipment arrives, it will be attached to the front end of a caterpillar tractor.
Last year the city received its first snow alert on Nov. 22 and on that day the snow removal season was officially launched.
"We usually get our first snowstorm when everyone is all packed up ready to go north for deer hunting," quipped a city official.

Bonds for Stadium On Hand

MENASHA — Bonds totaling $150,000 for construction of Nathaniel Calder Athletic Stadium have arrived at the Menasha City Hall, City Clerk Harry H. Kind told city aldermen during a council committee of the whole session Monday night.
With the affixing of proper signatures by Wednesday, money will immediately be available for the stadium construction project, he also noted.

Purchaser of the bonds was the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co., Chicago. The net interest figure for the anticipated 10-year loan period is $19,455 for a net effective interest rate of 2.381 per cent.
"After the money is available," Kind noted at an earlier date, "it's just a matter of the Menasha Council reviewing and approving McMahon Engineering Company plans, and obtaining and awarding of contractor bids."

Skiba Against Tax On Inventory in Neenah Club Talk

NEENAH — Taxes should be on profit and income and not on inventory, Ruffin Skiba, Democratic candidate for Third District assemblyman told the Neenah Club Monday noon.

He said the product should be taxed until it is sold. Skiba also repeated his opposition to the general sales tax and commented that industry and business under such a plan would have to pay a tax on its purchases even though it might not make a profit.

Wisconsin does not need two forms of taxation, the sales and the income tax. It should have just one form, he stressed, adding that state spending must be watched.

Taxes have no bearing on industry not coming into the state, Skiba contended, but political talk and scare talk are influential in keeping out industry. He urged telling the people the natural resources the state has to offer and in particular the St. Lawrence seaway.

New industries have been expanding in Wisconsin, Skiba added and pointed out the expansions of General Motors at Janesville, American Motors at Kenosha and Milwaukee and the paper industry at Green Bay.

15 Per Cent of Voters Cast Ballots by 11 a.m.

NEENAH — Voting in Menasha up to 11 a.m. today amounted to 16 per cent of the 6,437 registered voters while in Neenah 15 per cent of the registered 8,912 voters went to the polls.

City Clerk Harry H. Kind listed a vote tally of 1,033 ballots cast in the first four hours in Menasha. According to wards the votes cast were First Ward 155, Second Ward 161, Third Ward 208, Fourth Ward 147, Fifth Ward 222 and Sixth Ward, 140.

The Neenah vote total in that period was 1,317. City Clerk R. V. Hauser reported. Broken down by wards the ballots cast were First Ward 165, Second Ward 86, Third Ward 82, Fourth Ward 104, Fifth Ward 168, Sixth Ward 107, Seventh Ward 130, Eighth Ward 124, Ninth Ward 133 and 10th Ward 161.

Darboy Man Being Sought

Warrant Issued In Connection With Oskey Beating

Dist. Atty. Nick F. Schaefer today issued a warrant against a 31-year-old Darboy man whom he has charged with battery against Frank Oskey, 49, 216 S. Badger Ave.

Named in the warrant was Douglas Meyer. Appleton police were ordered today to find Meyer and place him in custody.

Oskey, who was released Monday from St. Elizabeth Hospital, was present in the district attorney's office when the warrant was signed. Oskey is the complainant.

Oskey was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital by Appleton police who found him lying on the ground unconscious at the rear of Carl's Tap, 523 W. College Ave., Oct. 28. Appleton police after an investigation of the alleged beating, said Oskey told them he was beaten by two men with whom he had an argument about his association with Negroes.

Oskey is married to a Milwaukee Negro but is currently separated. His first wife died in January, one week after he sought a marriage license in Milwaukee to marry his second wife. A coroner's inquest into the death of Oskey's first wife was held in March and the cause of death was listed as drug intoxication.

First Christmas Stamp Now On Sale in Fox Cities

The first Christmas stamp to be issued by the U. S. Post Office Department is now on sale at Fox Cities post offices.
The red and green stamp carries traditional yuletide symbols — burning candles and an evergreen wreath tied with a red bow. The lettering is in old English.

There has been more demand for this stamp than for any other ever issued, according to Postmaster General J. Edward Day. In the past the public has often sought out stamps which bore seasonal motifs or Christmas colors of red and green to put on Christmas mail. Many other countries have issued Christmas stamps.
The department is anticipating such a huge demand for the new stamp that the initial printing or half a billion stamps is the lar-

Leaders Not Pressed in AFL Figures

Len Dawson Still Ahead in Passing Despite Loss Sunday

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Statistics of the American Football League have settled into a rut—the leaders are holding their places without having to turn in record performances.

Len Dawson of Dallas still is ahead in passing with 122 completions for 1801 yards and 18 touchdowns although his team took a beating from Houston Sunday.

Lionel Taylor of Denver caught two passes in the Broncos' 23-20 victory over San Diego and it kept him on top with 50 for 578 yards. But Art Powell of New York snarled five against Oakland and moved within seven of Taylor.

Cookie Gilchrist of Buffalo stayed well out front in ball-carrying as he ran his total to 725 yards on 137 runs. Charles Tolar of Houston is second with 595 yards.

Gene Mingo of Denver padded his lead in scoring as he racked up three points against San Diego. Gino Cappelletti of Boston moved into second place ahead of Abner Haynes of Dallas with 10 points against Buffalo. Mingo has 107 points. Cappelletti 85 and Haynes, who failed to score against Houston, has 78.

Russian Cagers Arrive for Series Of Games in U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—The Russian men's and women's national basketball teams arrived Monday night for a series of games against U.S. teams.

The men's team will play a U.S. AAU all-star team in Madison Square Garden Thursday night in the opening game of the tour. The men will play eight games on the tour and the women six.

Stanislav Melentiev of the Soviet Olympic Committee said the men's team is superior to the 1959 Russian team that had a 2-4 record on a U.S. tour.

Melentiev and other officials accompanied the teams on their flight from Moscow via Brussels. They were greeted at Idlewild Airport by James O'Brien, deputy commissioner of public events for the city.

Palmer, Snead Open Practice For Cup Play

U. S. to Seek Third Straight Championship

SAN ISIDRO, Argentina (AP)—Arnold Palmer and Sam Snead, expected to carry the United States to its third straight title, open serious practice today for the 10th annual Canada Cup golf competition.

Palmer flew in late Monday from Miami to join the veteran Snead, who arrived a day earlier and marched right out to fire a 3-under-par 67 in a practice round on the 6,746-yard, par 70 Red course where the international opens Thursday.

Palmer said he had gained 11 pounds and was up to 180 after a three-week vacation during which he played little golf.

Putting Shaky "That's too much weight for me," said the Latrobe, Pa. power hitter who generally is considered the world's best golfer. But a couple practice rounds ought to get me in shape."

Palmer said he was concerned about his putting, shaky the last few months, and Snead was nursing a sore left foot. Otherwise, the favored Americans seemed about ready for the four-day, 72-hole test against two-man teams from 33 other countries.

Snead won the individual title last year in Puerto Rico, and paired with Jimmy Demaret for the team championship after Palmer was refused permission to compete because of previous PGA commitments at home.

The top threats to the American team figure to be the South African team of Gary Player and Denis Hutchinson; the Australian team of Kel Nagle and Peter Thomson; and the Argentine team of Roberto de Vicenzo and Fidel de Luca.

Bills, Chargers Make Bids For Tobin Rote

TORONTO (AP)—Both the Buffalo Bills and San Diego Chargers of the American Football League have made bids to quarterback Tobin Rote and fullback Gerry McGougall of the Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League to play out the rest of the season in the United States. The Argos were eliminated from the Eastern Football Conference playoffs last Saturday and both players have played out their contracts and are now free agents.

Buffalo General Manager Dick Gallagher said Monday night his team definitely wants Rote and is interested in McDougall if he would leave Canadian football permanently. The Chargers also are known to have made offers to both.

Rote announced last week that he would not return to the Canadian League next year, hinting at retirement, but still leaving open the door to possible affiliation in the United States. He formerly played with the Green Bay Packers and Detroit Lions of the National Football League.

Army May Reverse Anti-Bowl Stand

NEW YORK (AP)—After years of shunning any and all forms of post-season play, an Army football team may go to a bowl for the first time at the end of this season.

Coach Paul Dietzel, in revealing such a possibility Monday in a talk before the New York Football Writers, said there were two big "ifs."

"The academy's stand on the matter is unchanged," said the young mentor who, in his first year as head coach, has revived the football fortunes at West Point. "I have been told the authorities would agree to a bowl appearance on two conditions. "First, Army must have a team that would do the academy credit. "Second, the trip must be made without inconvenience to the players or the Academy. Should be Reward "Personally," Dietzel added. "I'd like a third condition of my own. I'd want the players to want to play in a bowl game. It should be a reward for a team, not a chore."

Army has a record of six victories and one defeat, losing only to Michigan. Sponsors of the Orange and Gator bowls are reported eager to get Army's acceptance. The Cadets have turned down many bids in the past but judging from Dietzel's talk the West Point officials' views regarding a bowl game appear to be liberalized.

A good deal depends of course upon how Army fares in its remaining games. The Cadets will have a breather this Saturday in Oklahoma State (2-4) but take off Pittsburgh next week and, finally, Navy in the traditional game between the service teams.

6-4 Last Year Army, which had a 6-4 record last year in the last season of Dale Hall's reign as head coach, has won four in a row this year after losing to Michigan 17-7 in its third game of the season.

The six Cadet victims have been over Wake Forest 40-14, Syracuse 9-2, Penn State 9-6, Virginia Tech 20-12, George Washington 14-0, and Boston U. 26-0.

Army has a "doggone good team with no special stars," says Dietzel.

Report Devine, Rickey Feud In St. Louis

Paper Says Rickey Has Shown Evidence Of Taking Over

ST. LOUIS (AP)—St. Louis Cardinal General Manager Bing Devine says he has a "great respect" for Branch Rickey, newly appointed club consultant who says he and Devine get along fine. But reports are that both have threatened to quit if they have to work with each other.

A feud has arisen over who is going to run the ball club. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat revealed on Monday in a copyrighted story. Rickey, the story said, has shown every evidence since his return of taking over complete operation of the Cardinals with whom he created the farm system in the early 1920s.

And although both men have reportedly been persuaded to stay on and try to work things out, the turmoil in the front office also seems likely to remain.

Surprised Devine admitted, the Globe said, he had been surprised by some developments.

The Globe said the first evidence of a division of authority came when Rickey answered questions by the press concerning club personnel without consulting Devine, who was present.

Rickey met with Manager Johnny Keane and George Silvey, director of player procurement, who were flown in for the meeting. A Cardinal official said Rickey could have gotten all the information he needed from Devine, the Globe said.

Then, Rickey issued several orders, the Globe said, which were virtually countermanding to directives previously given by Devine.

Water Ski Club Sets Meeting for Wednesday Night

A meeting of a newly-organized area water ski club will be held at the Appleton Yacht Club at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

All interested parties are invited to attend the session. There will be an election of officers, and a board of directors will be selected. An official name for the club will also be selected at the meeting.

Movies entitled "Ski Tricks" and "The Greatest Show on Water" will be shown after the business meeting.

Wayne Kilsdonk Socks 629 Set

Wayne Kilsdonk rolled a 237 game and a 629 series to pace the Kimberly-Clark Mill League at Jerry's Lanes, Kimberly.

Other high scores were hit by Wayne Meyer, 595, and Cliff Johnson, 225.

Harold Gullickson posted a 225 game, and Ray Grissman hit a 532 series to share honors in the Darby Bowling League at Bowling Bar, Kaukauna.

Donelli, Dietzel Disagree on Playing in Bad Weather

NEW YORK (AP)—Two of the East's leading coaches — Buff Donelli of Columbia and Paul Dietzel of Army—disagreed Monday on the question of playing college football games in miserable weather conditions.

"When we have a day like last Saturday—rain, cold and 40 mile an hour winds—I think the game should be canceled or postponed," Donelli told the New York football writers.

Columbia played Cornell at Baker Field in a blustery north-easter which spread a blanket of cold rain and snow over the eastern seaboard. Columbia won in the fading seconds 25-21.

"I'm happy we played it because we won," Donelli added, "but it's unfair to the players and to the fans to play in such bad conditions."

Dietzel, whose Army team downed Boston University 26-0 in similar conditions in Boston, voiced a dissent.

"The elements are there, we should be prepared to play in them," he said.

"If we don't play the game, what becomes of it. I'd hate to try to play it the next Tuesday. No, sir, we know we are going to run into bad weather days and we should be prepared for it."

"In fact, my boys enjoyed the bad weather—they thought it was fun."

Bolan Says Patterson Wants To Fight Sonny Liston 'Soon'

NEW YORK (AP)—Floyd Patterson, ready to emerge from a six-week hibernation, wants to fight Sonny Liston again and will ask New York to grant the heavyweight champion a license to box in the state.

This was revealed today by promoter Tom Bolan. The vice president of Championship Sports Inc. said he had talked with Patterson Monday and the former champion told him he is anxious to fight Liston "as soon as possible."

"Patterson told me he plans to begin training next week in Highland Mills, N.Y.," said Bolan. "He is very anxious for the return match and wants it to be held in New York."

Zelinske Named Chief Warden

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau MADISON — Walter Zelinske, deputy chief warden of the state conservation department, has become acting chief of the law enforcement division as a result of the retirement last week of Chief Warden George Hadland.

Lester P. Voigt, department director, said the permanent succession to the Hadland job will be handled through normal civil service procedures.

Harold Hettrick, administrative assistant in the enforcement division formerly stationed as a warden in Outagamie County, will be acting deputy chief warden pending the permanent staffing of the enforcement division high command.

Win Argentine Grand Prix

Women Average 79 Miles Per Hour on 2,762-Mile Course

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—A pair of pretty Swedish blondes, Ewy Rosquist and Ursula Wirth, have left a trail of broken records and crushed male egos in Argentina with a stunning victory in the 11-day, 2,762-mile Argentine Grand Prix for standard cars.

"We did it for the women of Argentina," Mrs. Rosquist beamed at a celebration Sunday night after she and her co-driver finished pushing their big Mercedes Benz 220 SE at an average of nearly 79 miles an hour in the six-leg race over rutted, unpaved roads.

And about the men? "They were extraordinarily nice," said the 33-year-old Ewy, choosing to ignore one incident where she was neatly pinched and responded by smacking her roadside admirer across the chops with a key chain.

"Actually, the drivers with us (the some 150 male competitors who chased them full throttle from town to town all 11 days) have been very nice. They were quite protective," said Mrs. Rosquist, and Miss Wirth nodded her agreement.

Athletic Group To Plan Banquet

LITTLE CHUTE — Plans for the annual St. John High School Athletic banquet will be discussed at the Athletic Association meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the high school.

Following the business session a film on the last pro-bowl football game will be shown. Lunch and refreshments will be served. The board of directors will hold a preliminary session at 7 p.m.

Hickey Says 49er Blocking '100 Per Cent Non-Existent'

BY JACK STEVENSON BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—What's wrong with the San Francisco 49ers?

Some blame Coach Red Hickey, some blame quarterback John Brodie. Others blame the players in general, or the entire management.

Fans booed lustily Sunday as the 49ers put on a lackluster show while losing to Baltimore 22-3. The week before the Los Angeles Rams gained their first 1962 National Football League victory at the expense of San Francisco. "Our blocking was 100 per cent non-existent," Hickey said after Baltimore limited his club to just 151 yards net gain during a frustrating afternoon. Just a month ago, the 49ers had downed the Colts 21-13.

"It didn't matter what we did, we got no blocking," Hickey said of the return engagement. "Hickey go home," one loud fan kept hollering most of the game. Others just booed the 49ers as time and time again they failed to penetrate the Baltimore defense.

Hickey used a rotating quarterback system with Brodie, Bill Kilmer and Bobby Waters calling the signals sent in from the bench. Still a 24-yard field goal was all the scoring. Even Abe Woodson's 79-yard kickoff return to start the second half went to no avail. Lenny Lyles, another 49er, caught him at the 15 and three plays later a Kilmer pass fell into enemy hands.

Tobin Rote Wins Passing Honors in Canadian Loop

TORONTO (AP) — Halfback George Dixon of the Montreal Alouettes won the scoring title and individual rushing championship in the Eastern Conference of the Canadian Football League in 1962.

League statistics showed today that the former University of Connecticut speedster scored 90 points on 15 touchdowns. Dixon, who averaged 7 yards per carry, gained 1,520 yards in 216 rushing attempts.

Quarterback Tobin Rote, who played out his option with the Toronto Argonauts and will not return next season, was the top passer in the league. Rote, who spent 10 years in the National League with Green Bay and Detroit, completed 188 passes in 39 attempts for 2,538 yards and an average gain of 7.3 yards.

Black Hawks' Pilote Sidelined for 10 Days

CHICAGO (AP) — Defense star Pierre Pilote will be lost to the Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League for 10 days because of hairline fracture of the left foot.

Pilote, captain of the Black Hawks, suffered the injury last Thursday in a 4-2 victory in Boston. The fracture was not discovered until Pilote underwent an X-ray examination Sunday.

Coach Rudy Pilous said veteran Jack Evans will take over Pilote's position.

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — A U.S. skin diver, Fred Baldasare, fighting tricky currents, chilling waters and heavy boat traffic, swam the Bosphorus Straits both ways underwater Sunday.

It was the first time the feat had been achieved. Baldasare, from New York, took 23 minutes, 38 seconds to swim from the Asian to the European side of the Bosphorus near the Istanbul suburb of Rumeli Hisar.

After less than a two minute pause the 38-year-old swimmer turned around and swam back. The second trip took 22 minutes, 56 seconds. The distance was about one mile.

Baldasare, whose goal is to swim important European waterways under water, already swam the English Channel, Messina Straits, and from Denmark to Sweden under water.

Breezeway window goes down—Mercury sales go up...up!

WHY DOES THIS BREEZEWAY REAR WINDOW help sell so many Mercury Montereys? This is styling that works! The recessed rear window stays clearer in rain or snow. It opens for controlled Flo-Thru ventilation. More wind, traffic noise and weather are shut out because the side windows can stay closed. The rear-window angle cuts glare, aids rear visibility. The extended Breezeway roof adds rear-seat headroom, shades passengers from the sun. See how practical elegance can be!

NU's Cvercko, Petkus Might Miss UW Game

Ohio State's Mummey Out With Knee Injury

CHICAGO (AP)—Midwest football briefs: Northwestern — First-string guards Jack Cvercko and Burt Petkus might miss the Wisconsin game because of leg injuries. Also sidelined is Larry Zeno, who has a neck injury but should be ready by Saturday.

Purdue—Halfback Tom Bloom and fullback Gene Donaldson were moved to the first string in an effort to give the Boilermakers added scoring punch for the all-important Michigan State game.

Michigan State — No injuries were reported in the Michigan State camp. The Spartans will work on sharpening their running attack which was tops in the nation before being held to 30 yards by Minnesota.

Minnesota — End John Campbell, a main cog in the Gophers' rock-like forward wall might miss the Iowa game because of a twisted knee. Halfbacks John Munsey and Al Fischer also are sidelined because of ailments but should be ready by Saturday.

Iowa—Reporting no serious injuries following their upset victory over Ohio State, the Hawkeyes worked on both their running and passing game for the Minnesota game. Iowa again will use a revised starting line-up as it did against Ohio State.

Ohio State—Quarterback John Mummey will miss the Indiana game because of a twisted knee and Joe Sparma will direct the Buckeyes. Others on the injured list include halfbacks Bo Scott and Paul Warfield, center Billy Joe Armstrong, linebacker Gary Moeller and fullbacks Bob Butts and Dave Katterhenrich.

Illinois — Only minor injuries were reported by the Illini, who worked on pass defense in preparation for Michigan. Coach Pete Elliott geared his squad for another week of hard work.

Notre Dame — Minor injuries sidelined guards Bob Lehmann and Jim Carroll, tackle George Bednar and end Clay Stephens as the Irish went through a light workout. All will be ready by mid-week.

Cage Bribery Trial Opens In New York

Wagman Testifies He And Molinas Entered Into Agreement

NEW YORK (AP) — Confessed basketball hiber Aaron Wagman has testified that he entered into an arrangement with Jack Molinas in 1957 because he needed backing in connection with the fixing of basketball games.

Wagman was the prosecution's first witness Monday at Molinas' trial on charges of bribery and conspiracy. Molinas, 30, a former Columbia University and Fort Wayne Pistons basketball star who now is a practicing attorney, was barred from pro basketball several years ago for betting on his own team's games.

Wagman, awaiting sentencing after pleading guilty to 27 counts of bribery and conspiracy in the 1961 college basketball scandal, said Joseph Hacken and Joseph Green were with him when the arrangement was made.

Pleaded Guilty

Hacken has pleaded guilty to several bribery and conspiracy counts in the basketball scandal. Green is under indictment both here and in North Carolina, which conducted a concurrent investigation.

In the course of his testimony, Wagman named Dave Goldberg of Chicago and St. Louis as Molinas' backer.

Wagman testified to at least two "fixed" games in which Molinas was involved. He said he and Green arranged for Richard Hoffman, 25, of Columbia, S.C., to dump a game between South Carolina and Georgia at the Gator Bowl tournament in Jacksonville, Fla., on Dec. 29, 1957. He said Molinas put up the money for a $1,000 bribe.

Mike Court Connects For 643 Series In Tavern League

John Plach smashed a 240 game and a 658 series for a clean sweep of honors in the Tavern League at Hahn's Lanes.

Badger (18-9) and Gil and Alma's are tied with a 2-game lead in the team standings.

Mike Court fired a 234 and a 643 for runnerup honors. Other honor counts were tallied by G. Merkel, 585; Mickey McGuire, 579; A. Gast, 571; B. Burmeister, 567; J. Johnson, 565; Frank Ankerson, 550; Bud Jentz, 237; B. Derfus, 225; and A. Reitzner, 235.

Art Rohde's 239 and Don Geer's 593 captured honors in the Sportsman's League. Geer's highest game count was seven pins short of Rohde's total.

Claude's Shell Service leads the teams with a 26-10 mark.

Other top scores were Dick Sheldon, 555; Herb Ramminger, 230 and 563; Chuck Bayer, 570; Jerry Eastman, 560; and Bob Helms, 568.

Hits 594 Series

Bill Fraser blasted a 216 game and "Spike" Versteegen accumulated a 594 series in the KCA General Office League.

Purchasing tops the standings with an 18-6 record. It has a 4-game lead.

Other honor counts were registered by Charles Stigall, Glynn Roehr, 553; and Wally Roehr, 561.

Roger Brandt swept laurels in the Tap-a-Keg League at the Barn Alleys with a 254 and 607. Vic Berrons hit a 567. Roger Blaese and Clarence Wittman had 575s, and Bur Burmeister notched a 569.

Brandt's holds a half game lead in the team standings.

3 Teams Added To Cage Loop

KAUKAUNA — Three teams have been added to the City Basketball League sponsored by the recreation department bringing the loop to eight entries.

Play will get under way Nov. 17-18. Seven of the teams have sponsors while Michael Riordan, captain of the eighth team, is still negotiating for a sponsor.

Other teams added are Gustman's, headed by Glen Mollen; and Kappell's Bar, headed by Jim Rausch.

Owner Halas Says He's Not Ready To Fire Coach Halas

CHICAGO (AP)—George Halas, owner of the Chicago Bears, isn't ready to fire George Halas, the Bears coach, George Halas said Monday.

Halas was popped this question at the Chicago American's quarterback club:

"If you didn't own the Bears, how long would you put up with a coach like you?"

Papa Bear chuckled and replied: "We are 4-4 so far this season and I would give the coach a 50-50 chance to continue."

"My metabolism remains good. I got up swinging this morning after that 38-7 defeat by Green Bay and ready to go. But after the game yesterday, when you lose like we did, you feel your age."

"We've been making mistakes at critical times. We are very much alive. We've got a good team and we will play good football on in."

Halas is in his 43rd season of professional football and his 35th as head coach of the Bears.

Another quarterback club speaker, Frank Lane, general manager of the Chicago Zephyrs basketball club, was asked what he would do if he were boss of the Chicago Cubs.

He said: "I would make Charlie Metro manager, have him select three coaches and send the rest of the coaches out to the minors."

Jim Gilliam Sued For Divorce by His Second Wife

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Infielder Jim Gilliam of the Los Angeles Dodgers was sued for divorce Monday by his second wife, Mrs. Edwina Fields Gilliam. She alleged cruelty.

Mrs. Gilliam requested $940 monthly alimony and support for their 21-month-old daughter, Yvette. She also asked for a division of community property, including the $45,000 family home in Redondo Beach.

Gilliam's earnings from baseball and other activities were estimated in the suit at $35,000 a year.

The couple married in St. Louis April 25, 1959. He is 32, Mrs. Gilliam 27. Gilliam's first wife, Gloria, divorced him in Rahway, N.J., in 1957.

Your Money's Worth

Shift Income for 1962 Tax Savings

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Because of the prospect for across-the-board tax cuts in 1963, it would be sound tax strategy for millions of you to try to shift some income from 1962 into 1963 and to move ahead into 1962 deductible expenditures which you otherwise might hold off until 1963. By so doing you'll reduce your 1962 taxable income and raise your 1963 income, and if your 1963 tax rates are cut, you'll achieve an over-all tax saving.

Here are ways you can manage this.

If you earn money by performing services, don't press for all your payments this year. Let some of your bills for services you perform this year run over and be paid in 1963.

If you sell property at a gain, don't take more than 30 per cent of the selling price, for this will allow you to report the income only as you get the balance of your payments. If you take anything over 30 per cent, you'll have to report the entire profit at once; even a 31 per cent payment would disqualify you from using the instalment method of reporting your profit.

Delay Cash-In

If you plan to cash in some U.S. savings bonds, delay your cash-in until January 1963. Then the interest you have earned on these bonds won't be taxed until 1963.

If you have deductible expenses which you normally would meet in January 1963 — bills for taxes, interest, medical care, the like — see if you can pay them before Dec. 31, 1962. You can pay bills for interest and taxes even if they aren't due until next year. As an illustration, say you have a real estate tax bill of which half is due in October, half in April. You can prepay the April 1963 instalment in December.

If you have a business which is run as a corporation, your goal should be clear. If your corporation's income is over $25,000 in 1962 and in 1963 or under $25,000 in 1962 and in 1963, you should try to throw income into 1963 to get the benefit of any corporation tax rate reduction which is voted.

The one significant exception to this general goal covers corporations which will have under $25,000 in one of these two years and over $25,000 in the other. The reason is that income up to $25,000 is taxed at 30 per cent, while income over $25,000 is taxed at 52 per cent — a 22 percentage point difference.

Shift Income

Even assuming corporation tax rates are cut in 1963, this 22-point spread would not be narrowed to less than 17 points at best. Thus, the overriding aim of these corporations should be to try to shift income from the over $25,000 year to the under $25,000 year — whether that is 1962 or 1963 — in order to save the huge 22 or 17 point spread.

If you are a self-employed business or professional man, you will be able, beginning with 1963, to set aside tax deductible funds for your retirement under one of the major tax laws passed this year. The law, though, limits the amount of the annual contribution which you can set aside for yourself to 10 per cent of your net earned income, but under no circumstances to more than $2,500 a year.

If you, as a self-employed person, want to increase the amount you can contribute next year under the 10 per cent limit, you may wish to try shifting some of your 1962 income into 1963 so that the 10 per cent will apply to a higher net earnings figure and give you a bigger permissible contribution. This is entirely apart from what you might do because of the outlook for tax reduction.

Deduct Medical

If you are under 65, you can deduct medical expenses above 3 per cent of your adjusted gross income. If your 1962 medical expenses are close to this requirement, you should try to bunch into these next several weeks expenses you know you'll have in the months ahead so that you can boost your expenses above the 3 per cent level and thus let the government share in paying your 1962 bills. You could speed up medical or dental work you now plan to have done in 1963 and pay for the treatments before Dec. 31, if this will create a medical expense deduction for you this year. More on this in a future column. (Copyright 1962)

Prince Faisal Given Post at Arabia's Helm

BY WEBB MCKINLEY
JIDDA, Saudi Arabia (AP)—The republican revolution in Yemen has shaken Saudi Arabia's throne and stirred its people. King Saud has named his brother Crown Prince Faisal to head a government that may give the Saudi monarchy its last chance. More than one observer believes that unless Faisal acts decisively to bring progress to this rich but backward oil kingdom the country's next government will be republican.

On the Spot
Faisal—thin, hawk-faced and ascetic at 58—may be the man to save the throne. In March 1958 he took the premiership to fend off another type of crisis—Saudi Arabia was on the financial rocks because of royal spending. Thirty months later the king dismissed Faisal, with whom he had never gotten along. In the time given him the younger brother had put the country on a solid fiscal footing. His economizing was drastic—for one six-month period not a single new Cadillac was bought for the royal family. He curtailed expenditures so firmly that they have never since gotten out of hand.

The problems facing Faisal today are different. Winds of change sweeping across the Arabian desert make the growing educated classes restless for change and bored with the puritanism of Saud's Wahabi sect.

Their country has no constitution, no true parliament, no census and few roads. It has not a single movie house. Its fading puritan zeal still prohibits movies, alcohol and theoretically even music from records. Women are only beginning to emerge from their medieval Moslem seclusion. Saud is a respected and gentle monarch with genuine regard for his people but some members of the royal family spend money with gross glee.

Solid Assets
Against these liabilities Faisal can draw on solid assets. Thanks in part to his own previous work and to growing revenues from American oil companies, Saudi Arabia's finances are in excellent shape.

The rial is one of the strongest currencies and the foreign debt is paid off. Since the start of the Yemen crisis there has been no sign of panic in the country and no flight of capital.

In recent years there have also been moves toward modernization, a generous and expanding educational program and improvements in communications, public health, agriculture and other technical fields.

The Saudi people have a strong tradition of loyalty to the royal dynasty.

The armed forces, where Arab revolts usually start, are scattered and separately organized. Aided by these factors, Faisal

Introducing;
Earl R. Theabo

ON THE JOB . . .

Pressman Theabo is another of our versatile members often referred to as a "combination man." He is both pressman and stereotypist. Earl produces the semi-circular plates for the press cylinders from cardboard type matrices received from the composing room. He also does "routing" work on the plates, emphasizing the raised and depressed areas, omitting dead areas, and processing color plates so that proper areas will come in contact with the necessary colored inks. When the presses are rolling, he sets the correct ink flow—black or colored inks—and keeps a constant check and makes continued adjustments to assure proper printing.

One of our industrious workers, Earl Theabo has been a member of the Post-Crescent staff since October, 1961.

IN THE COMMUNITY . . .

- * Earl Richard Theabo is a native of Oshkosh, makes his home in that fair city at 222 West 14th Avenue.
- * He is married to the former Elaine Janssen, and the couple, with seven children, is obviously a happy one. The children answer roll call to: Mary, Jean, Rose, Mike, Paul, Gary and John.
- * The children attend St. Vincent school and the family attends St. Vincent Church.
- * Earl is a real handyman at home as well as at the Post-Crescent plant, likes to be involved in "Do-It-Yourself" projects, and enjoys home movies and reading.
- * His work-a-day duties, hobbies and seven children keep Earl pretty tied up, but he has found time to take part in fund campaigns for the Catholic High School in Oshkosh and to be active in civil defense work.

Theabo

The true "Image" of a Company is its employees . . . people who contribute good work on the job and make an equal contribution to their community. The majority of our employees own their homes; pay taxes, buy merchandise, attend Church, send their children to school and take active part in civic affairs.

When you think of the Post-Crescent, think of it as people . . . who are your friends and neighbors!

'Women Are Bigger,' Says Airman When He Was Hit, Robbed

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Airman James Wilhoit of Davis Monthan Air Force Base is convinced women are getting bigger and tougher all the time.

Wilhoit, 43, said he was walking down a Tucson street when three women stepped out of a doorway, dragged him into a room, hit him over the head with a club and took $40 from his wallet.

Then, he told police, they tossed him out in the street.

Black Eye Result Of Phoenix Campaign

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Arizona Secretary of State Wesley Bolin says campaigning gets rougher each year.

Bolin, seeking re-election for an eighth term, attended a Little League baseball game to shake a few hands with the parents.

A youngster hit a foul ball that caught Bolin square in the eye. He continued his campaign with dark glasses hiding the black eye.

He still faces a formidable task of speeding up progress if the monarchy is to survive.

Blood Pressure Can Vary and be Normal

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.
Dear Dr. Molner: Can low blood pressure affect a person's mentality or memory? Do people who have it live longer than those with high blood pressure?

— M. A. F.

Molner

Low blood pressure isn't a disease. It is just a physical finding, such as the color of your skin, your weight, or temperature.

Too often people imply or fear that it is a cause of this, that or another complaint.

Blood pressure can vary rather widely and still be normal. We can (and do) find an average for a given age level, but everybody can't be average. Some are higher and others lower — yet normal.

Temperament can affect it. An easy-going, phlegmatic, perhaps slightly-built person will be on the low side; a nervous active person on the high side.

True, unduly low pressure can reflect certain disease states: Infection, debilitating ailments, low thyroid or adrenal activity.

Pressure Drops
There is also a condition known as orthostatic hypotension, in which the pressure drops to a low level when the person stands. Such individuals are subject to dizziness or light-headedness. The same thing can at times occur with drugs used to lower high blood pressure.

But these are quite different from cases in which the blood pressure is low but within normal ranges.

If, however, a person with low blood pressure feels draggy, listless, tired, it is merely a symptom of the underlying condition. The debility needs correcting. The blood pressure will take care of itself.

No, low blood pressure does not affect mentality or memory. Yes, persons with pressure in the lower normal ranges tend to live longer than those with excessively high pressure—although not necessarily longer than those with higher readings which remain within normal ranges.

Fads Won't Hurt
Dear Dr. Molner: Don't you think some of the teen-agers dress fads can be really harmful? Aren't the youngsters inviting future trouble by the shoes they insist upon wearing? Also is it advisable for girls to wear bras all the time? My daughter certainly does not need support and I can't understand why she doesn't welcome a chance to get out of restraining clothing as soon as she gets home from school.

— M. Y.

Most teen-age clothing fads are of relatively short duration and of little harm. Some current footwear doesn't add to their appearance, it seems to me, but the slippers are only two jumps away from going barefoot, and that is not harmful.

As to bras, again no harm. We may think it doesn't make much sense but the teen-agers want to act grown up. If your daughter can stand it, let it go at that. (Some don't wear them early enough.)

Has Bell's Palsy
Dear Dr. Molner: My son, 18, has Bell's Palsy. We have never heard of this before. He is making good progress with therapy. Are there after effects? — Mrs. M. E.

Bell's Palsy is the name applied to neuritis in a branch of the nerve in the face. Causes vary from infection to exposure to drafts to injury. to various forms of intoxications.

As long as the young man is making good progress, complete regeneration of the nerve, without after effects, is quite likely. Recovery is usually slow, varying from a few weeks to years. In some, a mild paralysis of part of the face becomes permanent. The steady recovery in your son's

Priest Plans To Fight Reds In Bolivia

Ex-Bomber Pilot Left Seminary to Join Air Force

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—In Arkansas, they call him "Father Joe" and tell of the things he has done to help the poor.

This is the same man who, in 1940, interrupted his training for the priesthood to become a bomber pilot because of his strong conviction Nazism must be stopped.

And now the Rev. Joseph W. Lauro is leaving a parish in Arkansas and the chaplaincy of the Disabled American Veterans to go to Bolivia because he wants to fight another "ism" — communism.

The spread of communism could wipe out Christianity, there unless Christians fight it, the tall, heavy-set priest said in an interview during the national convention of the DAV.

Has Volunteered
Father Lauro, 50, is one of a number of Roman Catholic priests who have volunteered to go to Bolivia as a member of Richard Cardinal Cushing's Society of St. James the Apostle.

After four months of language training in La Paz, the priests will travel around Bolivia for the rest of their five years there. "We will preach, take care of the poor and the ones who need medication," Father Lauro said.

Parishioners in Arkansas' Ozark

Mountains know Father Lauro for his care of the poor during 13 years at Eureka Springs and Russellville.

They say he always traveled in a car loaded with cartons of food and clothing gathered from friends for distribution to the poor.

And last May he set up a fund, using his own salary, money from the sale of his car and the gifts of some friends, to fulfill a promise he made to parishioner Roy Lensing on Lensing's death bed. The promise: That Lensing's three small daughters would be able to finish their education through high school.

Born in Chicago
Father Lauro, who was born born and reared in Chicago, had graduated from DePaul University and was in St. John's Seminary at Little Rock, Ark., in 1940. "When I saw the war turn, and Hitler's armies marched into Czechoslovakia and Poland," he said, "I decided I'd better do something there. So I asked the bishop for permission to leave the seminary and he granted it."

He joined the Royal Canadian Air Force in 1940. Within five months, he had completed pilot training and was in Europe as a bomber pilot. He flew 68 missions with the RCAF.

In 1943, then Capt. Lauro transferred to the U.S. Army Air Corps in London, and flew 34 more missions.

He won both the British and American Distinguished Flying Crosses, and also the American Air Medal.

In 1945, he went back to the seminary, was ordained a priest in 1949.

Voters Standing in Line at
Polling Places in Big Cities

WASHINGTON (AP)—American voters turned out in heavy numbers in key states today to cast ballots in elections deciding the makeup of congress for the next two years and picking governors in 35 states.

The balloting through the forenoon indicated advance predictions of a record off-year total of more than 50 million votes would be realized. With few exceptions, the weather was good countrywide.

Voters were standing in line when the polls opened in Detroit and other Michigan cities, and voting was reported heavy in upstate New York and in such populous states as Pennsylvania, Ohio and Massachusetts.

President Kennedy got his own ballot in early, voting in the basement of a police station on Boston's Beacon Hill. He got cheers from bystanders.

Kennedy's presence in Massachusetts was calculated to give a lift to Democratic candidates for office and, in particular, to his brother, Edward, the party nominee for the U. S. Senate.

But Kennedy's stake in the election outcome ran nationwide, it embraced the questions:

1. Whether the voters would elect a congress for the next two years of his term in the White House more responsive to his legislative desires than the present congress, and

2. How the voting, particularly for governors, might affect the basic Democrat vs. Republican lineup for the 1964 presidential election.

At stake: 39 Senate seats, all 435 House seats and 35 governorships.

Kennedy, trying to set a good example, is in Boston to vote in person.

The weatherman has cooperated with prediction: generally dry weather for most of the nation, with scattered rain in the North.

Could Set Record
If around 50 million turn out, it will be a new high for these off-year elections. The previous peak, set in 1938, was 47,854,000.

Since 83 million are qualified, no one will be bragging about the record. It's due more to a gain in population than to a more fervid interest in the nation's welfare.

Both sides wound up with the customary trumpeting about a certain victory.

But the final guess is that there will be no clear-cut victory.

This would be a fitting end for what has been a clear-cut campaign, a battle between the Cuban crisis and other domestic issues but wound up under the cloud of the Cuban crisis.

The guesses:
1. Republicans may gain a few

Truck Driver Dies In Iowa Collision

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—A truck driver was killed and another critically injured this morning in a fiery crash on Interstate 35 about 15 miles southwest of here.

The dead man was burned beyond recognition and was not immediately identified.

Officers said a semi-trailer rig from Thomasville, Ga., driven by James Morrison, 24, of Eureka, Ill., struck the rear of a truck loaded with rutabagas and bearing Wisconsin tags.

Both trucks were southbound. They went off the highway near the Cumming interchange.

The driver of the Wisconsin truck was thrown from his vehicle and pinned under the semi-trailer cab, which burned.

Morrison and his passenger, Harold Sauder, 27, also of Eureka, were hospitalized in Des Moines.

Morrison's condition was critical, Sauder's was fair.

New Delhi Regime
Seeks Way to Halt
Communist Drive

NEW DELHI (AP)—India plans to bring home its U.N. forces to battle the Chinese Communist invaders, a Foreign Office spokesman announced today.

Indian villagers will also be taught to shoot in the government's hard-pressed efforts to stem a Chinese drive that has overrun 2,000 square miles of borderland and thrust one spearhead into undisputed Indian territory.

India has troops with U.N. forces in both the Congo and the Middle East.

The spokesman indicated that withdrawal of India's well-seasoned brigade of 5,700 men from the U.N. Congo force may still be some time in the future, however.

He said India hopes to pull out this contingent as soon as an agreement is reached between the Congolese central government and secessionist Katanga Province. The two sides still seem far apart on Congo unity.

Thant Informed
The spokesman did not say how soon the 1,250-man force serving in Gaza would come home.

He said plans for the withdrawal of the Indians, the largest contingents in both U.N. forces, had been brought to the attention of Acting U.N. Secretary-General U. Thant.

Girding for grass-roots resistance, Home Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri said rifle training will be given to every able-bodied person in mountain areas facing Red China. Later they will be equipped with small arms.

Usually reliable sources reported the Chinese have occupied an abandoned Indian military base that controls northern Ladakh, endangering the entire Indian position on the western front.

This meant that for the first time in the border conflict the Chinese have established their army in a part of India which the Peiping government did not claim previously.

The base, at Daulet Beg Oldi, was abandoned by Indian troops a few days ago because it had become impossible to hold that anchor of the Himalayan battle line.

AEC Liaison Officer Loses Canadian Post Because of Criticism

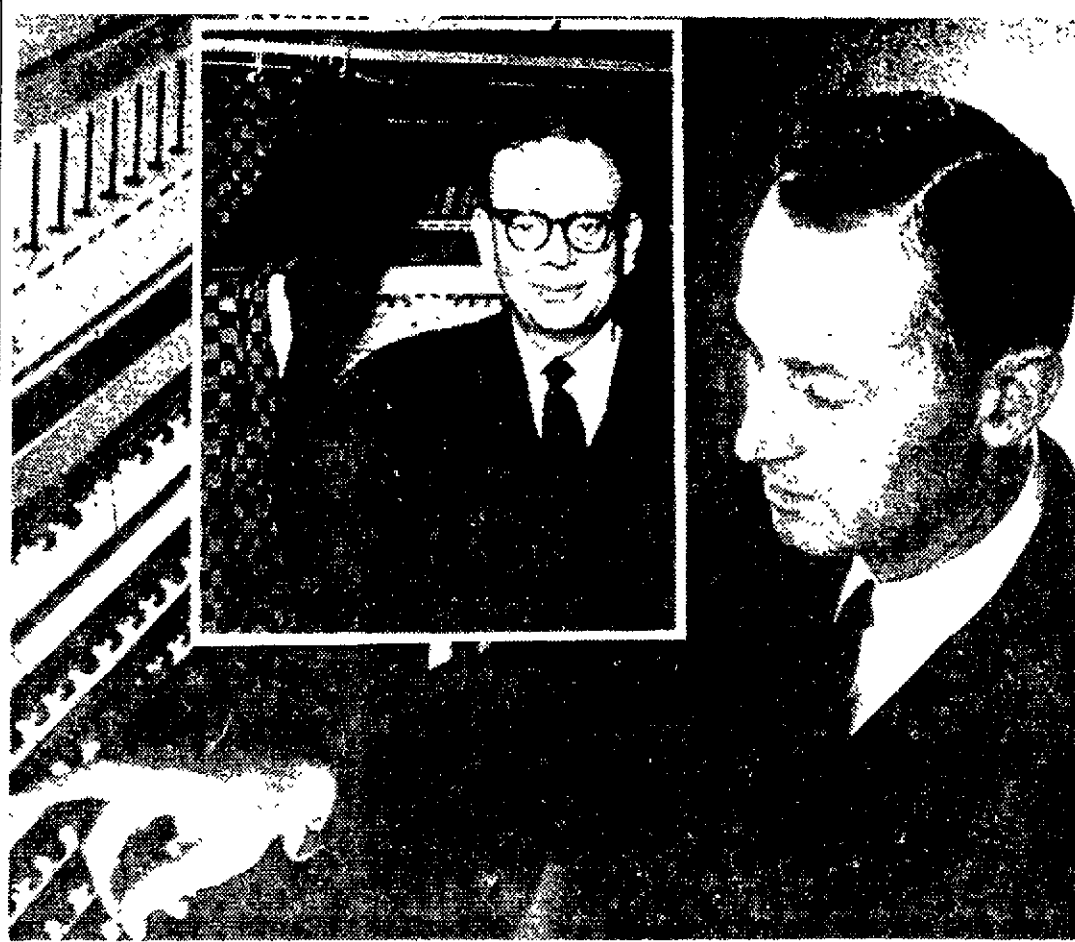

OTTAWA (AP)—Robert W. Ritzmann, liaison officer for the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission in Canada, has been recalled to Washington because of a letter published under his name in the Washington Post criticizing Canada's role in the Cuban crisis, it was disclosed here today.

Ritzmann's letter to the Washington newspaper was published Monday. Its contents were not available here.

An official of the U.S. Embassy said Ritzmann's recall was ordered by the U.S. State Department after the publication.

Ritzmann has been liaison officer to Canada for the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission for about two years. During this period he has been stationed at Canada's atomic energy establishment at Chalk River, Ont.

Red Official Lauds Soviet Cuban Stand

Sense,' Deputy Premier Says

MOSCOW (AP)—Deputy Premier Alexei Kosygin declared today that withdrawal of Soviet rockets from Cuba was "a concession to common sense."

At the same time he pledged to help Cuba defend its sovereignty. "We helped and will continue to help the Cuban people defend their sacred right to peace," Kosygin said.

He spoke at a rally in the Kremlin auditorium on the eve of the celebration of the 45th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Demands German Pact
Kosygin also expressed regret over fighting on the Indian-Chinese border. He urged immediate negotiations.

"The sooner these negotiations start," he said, "the better for the cause of peace."

Kosygin also demanded that the Berlin problem be solved by the signing of a German peace treaty.

He did not say when the Soviet Union might sign a separate treaty with East Germany. Such a treaty might give East Germany full control over allied access routes to Berlin.

It was a wide-ranging speech and Kosygin reiterated familiar Soviet demands for complete and general disarmament, more East-West trade, and peaceful coexistence in all parts of the world.

He asserted that peaceful coexistence was a leading point of Lenin's doctrine.

Premier Khrushchev sat on a rostrum, but did not speak.

Regarding the rockets that were sent to Cuba, Kosygin said that so long as President Kennedy had "solely declared before the world that there would be no aggression against Cuba, either on the side of the United States, or by any other country in the Western Hemisphere, the presence of the weapons—which had been called offensive by the U.S.—was not a problem. The trip, not formally announced by the White House, is to start Wednesday with the four senators leaving here aboard a presidential plane.

Accompanying Mansfield will be Sens. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., Benjamin A. Smith, D-Mass., and J. Caleb Boggs, R-Del., it was learned.

It also was reported that Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois was asked to make the trip but declined.

20 Feared Dead In Mine Blast On Spitzbergen

OSLO, Norway (AP)—An explosion ripped through a coal mine 650 feet below the surface last night on the Arctic island of Spitzbergen.

Gov. Finn Backer Midboe said 10 bodies had been found and 11 other miners are missing and presumed dead.

About 100 men were working in the mine at the time of the explosion.

There was no immediate report on the cause of the explosion.

The mine is at Newalesund, one of the northernmost communities in the world.

4 Senators Plan Trip for Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and three other senators reportedly will make a fact-finding trip to West Berlin and Southeast Asia for President Kennedy.

The trip, not formally announced by the White House, is to start Wednesday with the four senators leaving here aboard a presidential plane.

Accompanying Mansfield will be Sens. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., Benjamin A. Smith, D-Mass., and J. Caleb Boggs, R-Del., it was learned.

It also was reported that Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois was asked to make the trip but declined.

Jets-for-Cuba Activity Seems To Have Halted

U. S. Air Survey
Expected to Show
Exact Situation

BY HARRY KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Informed sources report the Soviet Union was still assembling jet bombers in Cuba last week but that there is evidence the work stopped after a tough U.S. warning.

Within a day or so U.S. surveillance flights are expected to show whether the Russians are withdrawing the IL28 bombers which are capable of carrying nuclear warheads and have a 750-mile range.

The Pentagon was maintaining an almost complete blackout of news dealing with surveillance results.

Washington sources said there was some indication the work of uncrating the bombers has stopped. They said further surveillance will be necessary to show whether the Russians are withdrawing the planes under Soviet Premier Khrushchev's agreement to remove all offensive weapons from Cuba.

Continued to Unrattle Jets
The informants said information reached Washington Saturday that while the Russians were dismantling the missile bases they were continuing to uncrate and assemble the estimated 20 or so IL28s shipped to Cuba.

President Kennedy was reported to have been highly concerned about the report which indicated Khrushchev might be hedging on his part of the crisis agreement.

On Sunday, according to the sources, U.S. representative John J. McCloy took up the matter in New York with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily Kuznetsov.

McCloy was understood to have told the Russian the United States wants the planes as well as the missiles removed from Cuba.

McCloy was reported to have made plain that Kennedy's no-invasion pledge held good only if the Soviet Union followed through with its part of the bargain.

Kuznetsov repeated the Soviet premier's assurances that the offensive weapons would be removed from Cuba under international inspection, said the sources.

At the Pentagon Monday, almost every question on the Cuban situation was turned back with a "no comment."

Sweden Plans Tighter Security Arrangements
As Papers Disappear

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Security arrangements within the Swedish armed forces are under scrutiny following the recent disappearance of 24,000 secret documents from the offices of the comptroller general of the armed forces.

The documents were gone for nine days before a civilian truck driver returned them, saying he had picked them up by mistake.

The documents contained full information on Swedish ammunition supplies, estimated ammunition needs in case of mobilization and locations of Swedish munitions dumps.

Security police said the truck driver had orders to pick up eight boxes of electronics equipment.

The driver left with eight boxes. Nine days later it was discovered that the boxes contained the secret military information.

Mikoyan Inspects New Cuban Fishing Port

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan inspected the installation Monday at the new fishing port constructed in Havana harbor, Cuban radio reported.

The broadcast monitored here said Soviet fishermen invited Mikoyan to lunch. The radio did not comment on the Soviet diplomat's mission in Cuba regarding talks with Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

In September, Castro reportedly signed two treaties with the Soviet fisheries minister, Alexander Ishkov, for construction of a fishing port in the bay. Ishkov told newsmen recently in Mexico City that the port was installed for development of the Cuban fishing industry.

Inspection Instead of Naval Patrol

Chicago Daily News Service

UNITED NATIONS—Acting Sec. Gen. Thant today was to welcome a Swiss Red Cross official here to work out details of a check for arms shipments to Cuba.

Dr. Paul J. Ruegger, former chairman of the International Committee of the Red Cross, arrived to confer with Thant on replacing the U. S. naval blockade of Cuba with a Red Cross team under U. N. auspices and with Soviet and American approval.

Meanwhile, all sides here still await word from Havana where Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan is talking to Cuban leaders about the Soviet promise to allow U. N. inspection of removal of Soviet missiles.

No word from Mikoyan had arrived last night, indicating Cuban Premier Fidel Castro may be still holding out against letting U. N. inspectors into Cuba.

Castro's refusal will mean continuance of American spy plane flights over Cuba, it was understood. Whether Russia will nevertheless agree to Red Cross inspection of incoming shipments is in doubt.

Must Verify Removal
The Red Cross checkup would go on for about a month. American officials stress the need to verify removal of Soviet missiles and long-range bombers on the ground.

Compared to this, the inbound shipping check is of minor interest to Washington. In other major U. N. news:

Bulgarian Reds

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP)—Bulgarian Communists won praise today from the Kremlin's top party theoretician for backing the "peaceful coexistence" foreign policy preached by Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Mikhail Suslov, the theoretician, also gave Moscow's approval for the purge of Stalinists from Bulgarian party and government posts, including Premier Anton Yugov and half a dozen others.

Suslov, head of the Soviet delegation to the eighth Bulgarian party congress, told the 1,055 delegates: "Under its capable leadership, the Bulgarian party has kept itself clean by its struggle against dogmatism, revisionism and sectarianism."

A significant factor in the Bulgarian purge was the ouster of Georgi Kumbuliyev, ambassador to Red China.

Waupaca Sheriff, Police Disputing County, City Units, Deputies Have Discussed Many Differences

WAUPACA — Minutes of the Bonnell, deputy sheriff, were questioned by the committee during the year ending Nov. 1 read Monday to the county board indicated all was not going well in the relationship between the sheriff's department and other law enforcement groups.

Supv. Waldemar Johnson, secretary of the committee, read the minutes of three meetings which indicated the committee was attempting to mend relations between the sheriff's department and the county police and the city sheriff's department and the city police.

At one of the meetings, the county police were called in to discuss the differences and at the other meeting all of the chiefs of police in the county and John Johnson said Robert Backer, county clerk, may have an accounting of the revenues received by the sheriff from other departments. Backer, Thompson said, has no record of the money paid by other communities to the sheriff for board bills.

Other activities of the committee included the advancement of Lyle McCully, New London, county policeman, to the rank of sergeant and plans to buy new radios for the squad cars next year.

The committee set 37 cents per gallon as the maximum price for gasoline for the squad cars. Supv. Dave Sexton, Royalton, told the board he saw a recent bill charging 38.5 cents per gallon for gasoline.

The price arrangement also triggered off a discussion by Supv. Clifford Nolan who suggested the county could save up to $8,000 per year if the squad cars used gasoline purchased by the highway department. Supv. Carl Dretzke, Manawa, chairman of the law enforcement committee, said the price difference is worth it because of the additional services rendered by the filling station operators like washing cars and doing minor repair work.

Nolan suggested it would not be harmful to run the cars on "regular" brand gasoline instead of "high test" for one year.

The board briefly discussed the possibility of combining the sheriff's office with the county police. The matter was tabled after several supervisors said the combination is not working out in some counties where the departments merged.

Weyauwega Council To Complete Paper On Federal Grant

WEYAUWEGA—The city council Monday night approved a budget calling for expenditures of $69,522 for 1963 and scheduled a public hearing Monday, Nov. 19 at city hall.

The proposed budget calls for a tax levy of $20.877, about $2,700 less than budgeted for 1962 expenditures. Income other than the tax levy for the proposed 1963 budget is $48,635 in estimated revenue.

The city's biggest single revenue, outside of taxes, is an estimated $17,500 from income tax returns. State aids for street improvements may run around $13,000.

The street department plans to spend $24,650. The city government has an allocation of $10,400 and the police and fire departments and hydrant rental calls for a budget of $19,650 for 1963.

Relief Budget

The payments on indebtedness in 1963 will be $5,322. The council also is proposing $2,000 for black-topping the parking lot.

Mayor Walter Kamps said the proposed budget will need a tax rate of $7.77 per $1,000 assessed valuation for city purposes only. He said the tax rate for the school levy is expected to climb to $35.53 per $1,000, bringing the total to $43.30, excluding state and county taxes.

The council rejected a proposal by Chief of Police Kenneth Thompson to pay his expenses to the state institute of the Wisconsin Juvenile Officers Association.

Chief Thompson said he was the only person attending the institute who had to pay his own expenses. He said his attendance there benefited the police department and the community. He was named to the board of directors of the association.

Waupaca Board to Have List Of Food Recipients' Names

Would Help Distinguish Who Should be Getting Surpluses

WAUPACA — The newly started distribution of surplus food commodities in Waupaca County became a point of discussion Monday at a meeting of the county board.

John Lubbers, welfare department director, was asked to prepare a printed list of all of the people receiving free food and send a revised list of all of the recipients every three months to all of the supervisors.

Supv. Clifford Nolan, Town of Little Wolf, asked for the list after mentioning the town chairman should know who is receiving free foods.

Supv. John Hansen, Waupaca, suggested there may be fewer applications if supervisors have lists of names.

Supv. Fred Hoffman, Marion, indicated there are some people who should be receiving the food but are too modest to apply.

1,236 Receive Food

Lubbers said 1,236 people received free food last month and 831 received it during the first month's distribution. The county distributed 71,417 pounds of food to 4,224 since the program started. The retail cost of the food is about $23,232 and the cost to the county was $3,158. The county allocated $10,000 for the distribution program.

Lubbers said the county distributed $788,278 including $493,859 in old age assistance, $138,786 in aid to dependent children, $7,781 in blind aid, $68,691 in aid to the disabled and $58,139 for administration of which the county's share was $125,423 or 15.91 per cent of the total.

Supervisors discussed the possibility of changing over to the county method of jurisdiction over the relief program. The county is presently operating under the local unit control with each township, village and city in charge of its own relief program. Several supervisors mentioned they liked the local unit control.

Payment Difference

There was a substantial difference between the medical payments and money payments in the old age assistance program. Although total expenditures were about $1,276 less than in 1961, the medical payments increased $31,567 from $260,760 in 1961 to $292,327 in 1962, but the difference was offset by a decrease of $33,042 in money payments from $196,993 in 1962 to $230,035 in 1961.

During the year, the welfare department gave services to 221 children from the child welfare workers. The department also handled 43 miscellaneous types of referrals. Lubbers said the child cases involved neglected, delinquent and dependent children.

Lubbers said the emphasis is directed toward assisting people to achieve a greater degree of self-help and toward furthering family stability.

Welfare Work

Lubbers also mentioned the welfare department is becoming increasingly involved in the treatment of patients who are ready for release from mental institutions.

This has been necessitated, he said, by the overcrowding of institutions and the development of new techniques in caring for them, particularly in the case of tranquilizing drugs. There is a definite pay off in this area because it is much cheaper to care for someone in his home than in an institution.

Lubbers also pointed out in his report that the time is arriving when consideration will have to be given to hiring a person for responsible supervision over case workers and planning and treatment for each case.

Church Marks Anniversary

Clintonville Group Observes 50th Year Of Present Building

CLINTONVILLE — The Salem Evangelical United Brethren Church observed the 50th anniversary of its present church building with morning and afternoon services Sunday. A fellowship dinner was served at noon. The Rev. Warren W. Sutton is the pastor.

The guest speaker was the Rev. Herbert E. Zebarth, Fond du Lac, who observed the 50th anniversary of his present church building with morning and afternoon services Sunday. "Echoes of Our EUB General Conference," was the theme of the conference held Oct. 23 through Nov. 1. The Rev. Mr. Zebarth was one of 14 delegates who represented the Wisconsin EUB conference in the general conference at Grand Rapids, Mich.

Mrs. Zebarth sang, "Bless This House," at the afternoon service. Other ministers who participated in the service were the Rev. Bryce G. Armstrong, Neenah; the Rev. Roy W. Berg, Seymour; and the Rev. G. E. Zellmer, Ripon, who is retired. The Rev. Mr. Sutton read several messages received from other former pastors who were unable to be present.

$69,522 Budget For Weyauwega

Tax Levy Lower by $2,700

WEYAUWEGA—The city council Monday night approved a budget calling for expenditures of $69,522 for 1963 and scheduled a public hearing Monday, Nov. 19 at city hall.

The proposed budget calls for a tax levy of $20.877, about $2,700 less than budgeted for 1962 expenditures. Income other than the tax levy for the proposed 1963 budget is $48,635 in estimated revenue.

The city's biggest single revenue, outside of taxes, is an estimated $17,500 from income tax returns. State aids for street improvements may run around $13,000.

The street department plans to spend $24,650. The city government has an allocation of $10,400 and the police and fire departments and hydrant rental calls for a budget of $19,650 for 1963.

Relief Budget

The budget proposes $7,500 for relief, public library, tuition, health officer, dumping grounds, recreation and street decorations.

The payments on indebtedness in 1963 will be $5,322. The council also is proposing $2,000 for black-topping the parking lot.

$150,000 Research Agreement Signed In River Projects

Attempt to Preserve Wolf River Basin's Resources Will be Made

A great new era of progress in the preservation and development of the Wolf River Basin was launched with the signing of the $150,000 research and planning agreement authorized by the executive committee of the Wolf River Commission at Shawano, Thursday.

The State Department of Resources Development is to undertake a comprehensive and detailed study and analysis of the seven county area. Studies to be furnished to the Commission over a 30 month period will include an economic and population analysis, soil, water, topography, land use maps, a transportation analysis and a recreation analysis.

The Department will then submit plans identifying the type of economic activity which should, because of its consistency with the area, be fostered and promoted for the betterment of the area. Special attention will be paid to wood products manufacture and development of the tourist industry, as well as opportunities to develop new forms of industry, trade and commerce. Additional plans will be formulated for the development of recreation and tourist facilities, for the most suitable use of lands in the region and for the utility of water resources, including means of solving water shortage and flooding problems. Model laws will be drafted and assistance and cooperation of local public and private groups, and county officials will be sought in order to implement the regional development plans.

Preparation of the studies and development plans will be under the direction of a resident planner and staff working with the Commission.

Resident Planner

The City of Appleton, the place of residence of the Chairman of the Commission, was selected by the Commission to be the headquarters offices at which such research staff, planning and service facilities will be located. It was determined that all existing studies heretofore made by several state and federal agencies would be utilized to expedite the research and obviate any duplication. Also specially emphasized by the Commission Executive Committee was the fact that progress reports and a resume of development progress will be expected during the 30 months designated for the research and planning.

A tour of the Wolf River area following the meeting of the Commissioners illustrated the economic and recreational potential of the Wolf Basin. Highlights of the trip were a tour of the Neopit saw mill, viewing of the giant virgin white pine, and stops at the Wolf River Dells and Smoky Falls on the Wolf River.

Saturday Night's Moment of Death Brings Fear, Pathos

BY JEAN OTTO Post-Crescent Women's Editor

A train and a car kept a date with death Saturday night.

The train and its human cargo started their journey at 4:10 p.m. in Chicago. Inside the heavy steel carrier travelers returning from a visit with children in Florida, teachers returning from conventions, shoppers with loads of packages, students going home for a day, children eager for their own beds, and hundreds of others, each with his own personal purpose for being there, settled themselves comfortably for a quiet trip.

People sat next to strangers. They exchanged pleasant impersonal words, and remained strangers. When they reached their destinations, they would separate, and none would take with him any part of the other. His privacy would be inviolate.

Time slid away. All was orderly, quiet, ordinary. A college girl with puffed hair read a magazine; two boys, about 12 years old, traveled from car to car, looking at people and having a good time, occasionally munching licorice; nuns read from prayer books; parents hushed fretful babies, people looked at watches.

The dark was slashed by the train's lights cutting into its blackness with sure and certain speed. Sets of countless twin beacons flashed on the highway beside the track. Then suddenly, the lights on the road were the only lights. The train was in darkness and the brake was felt as it pulled to a stop. All sound stopped with the lights. It was as if everyone held a collective breath, and wasn't able to release it. Then a young man broke the tension with, "We could sing."

His words were a signal for everyone. Questions to which there were no answers hung in the blackness. Fear began to nibble at people's minds. No one knew what, or why, but each knew that something had happened. Voices cut the dark to worry that another train would come and not see us there. Panic was heard when a woman said, "I just know we're over water."

Cigarette lighters were struck and bits of flame made eerie shadows on the faces of their owners. They snapped shut. There was nothing to see. Outside, the train's mournful whistle crept through paneless windows.

Flares moved along the ground outside and people wondered and looked.

Then the two wandering boys brought back the news. "We hit a car."

The silence held a different sound now, and was broken by a moan that came from everyone at once. Fear was gone in a quick and real concern for the persons in that car. Lights came on and the train began inching its way back to the crossing. Everyone watched as a man with a flare ran to the highway and flagged down a motorist, then got into the car and sped down the road. In a few minutes, while sobered eyes looked at each other, flashing red lights raced toward the train.

There was no sense of privacy then. No attempt to keep "out of contact." Everyone knew everyone else, for the word "death" had made them all linked by life. Everyone felt pain, for the boy who lost his life, for his family, and for being part of it.

The train limped into Neenah, slowly, past the flashy theater sign that read, "No Man is an Island."

The train was not on time.

$5 Million Addition Set by Nicolet Co.

Building to House Paper Machine, Supercalender, Water Plant

Post-Crescent News Service
DE PERE — Expansion costing more than $5 million was announced today by the Nicolet Paper Co., of West De Pere.
Construction will commence immediately on a building to house a new high-speed 160-inch paper machine designed to increase mill capacity by about 10,000 tons annually. Nicolet is a leading producer of glassine, greaseproof and specialty sulphite papers.
The current expansion includes a building to house the new paper machine and a new supercalender. An additional building will be erected to accommodate a new and modern water treating plant, the announcement states.
Prior to building, Nicolet Paper Co. has filed a request with the Wisconsin Public Service Commission for permission to locate the new facilities over the plant's mill race on Fox River.
This is the second major expansion at the West De Pere mill in recent years. In 1960, production was doubled when no. 3 paper machine was placed in full operation. A new finishing and shipping room has recently been integrated in the mill's operation.
The current project is a continuation of a long-range expansion program for Nicolet which was planned at the time the mill was acquired by Philip Morris Inc.

First Christmas Stamp Now On Sale in Fox Cities

The first Christmas stamp to be issued by the U. S. Post Office Department is now on sale at Fox Cities post offices.

The red and green stamp carries traditional yuletide symbols — burning candles and an evergreen wreath tied with a red bow. The lettering is in old English.

There has been more demand for this stamp than for any other ever issued, according to Postmaster General J. Edward Day. In the past the public has often sought out stamps which bore seasonal motifs or Christmas colors of red and green to put on Christmas mail. Many other countries have issued Christmas stamps.

The department is anticipating such a huge demand for the new stamp that the initial printing or half a billion stamps is the largest ever made on any special stamp.

The 1962 Christmas stamp is the first of a series. Stamps with new designs will be issued each year. Because of the new postal rates which go into effect Jan. 7, the 1962 stamp will be the first and last four-cent Christmas stamp. Future stamps will be in the five-cent denomination.

The Post Office Department reportedly hopes that the Christmas stamp will encourage people to send Christmas cards at the higher first-class postal rates.

The new stamp is the same size as the regular four-cent postage stamp, instead of the larger size of most commemorative stamps. This is so that the public, which soon will begin mailing millions of Christmas cards, will not have so much stamp surface to lick, according to Appleton postmaster Francis Sumnicht.

MILWAUKEE—The U. S. District Court in Milwaukee Monday placed Mrs. Joan M. Stickney, Appleton, convicted of embezzling almost $1,000 from two labor unions where she worked as a financial secretary, on two years probation.

Mrs. Stickney was financial secretary for the AFL-CIO Local 19765 and Local 765 of the United Textile Workers of America at Meyer Burstein and Sons Co., Neenah.

She had pleaded guilty to the charge earlier. Judge Robert E. Tehan imposed sentence.

Darboy Man Being Sought

Warrant Issued In Connection With Oskey Beating

Dist. Atty. Nick F. Schaefer today issued a warrant against a 31-year-old Darboy man whom he has charged with battery against Frank Oskey, 49, 216 S. Badger Ave.

Named in the warrant was Douglas Meyer. Appleton police were ordered today to find Meyer and place him in custody.

Oskey, who was released Monday from St. Elizabeth Hospital, was present in the district attorney's office when the warrant was signed. Oskey is the complainant.

Oskey was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital by Appleton police who found him lying on the ground unconscious at the rear of Carl's Tap, 523 W. College Ave., Oct. 28.

Appleton police after an investigation of the alleged beating, said Oskey told them he was beaten by two men with whom he had an argument about his association with Negroes.

Oskey is married to a Milwaukee Negro but is currently separated. His first wife died in January, one week after he sought a marriage license in Milwaukee to marry his second wife. A coroner's inquest into the death of Oskey's first wife was held in March and the cause of death was listed as drug intoxication.

Kaukauna Woman Injured in 2-Car Crash on U. S. 41

Post-Crescent News Service
GREEN BAY — A Kaukauna woman was injured Monday afternoon when the car she was driving collided with another car on U.S. 41 at Brown County Trunk E.E.

Mrs. Peter Melchior, 46, 500 W. Sixth St., was taken to Kaukauna Memorial Hospital for treatment of a scalp laceration and possible chest injuries following the crash.

Police said the accident occurred when a car driven by Robert E. Ossman, 31, route 1, Black Creek, pulled out onto the highway into the path of the Melchior's car.

Burial will be in Highland Memorial Park. Friends may call at the Brettschneider Funeral Home after 3 p.m. today until 2 p.m. Wednesday.

Mrs. Bellin, 31, of 323 W. Justin St., died from head and chest injuries she received when the car in which she was a passenger spun out of control and hit a bridge abutment on County Trunk BB near Butte des Morts Country Club about 11:00 p.m. Sunday.

Hearing Set On Bridge For Menasha

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON—Feasibility of a new bridge across Little Lake Butte des Morts in the City of Menasha will be explored by the state highway department at a public hearing in Menasha Nov. 27, the department announced here.

The hearing will be at the Elks club in Menasha at 10 a.m.

Purpose of the hearing is to make a record of testimony on the feasibility of the proposed new span at what would be Ninth street extended in the City of Menasha, prospective costs, needs in relation to Fox Valley metropolitan area development and traffic patterns present and prospective.

Petition for Bridge
The City of Menasha several months ago petitioned for the new structure, relating it to the area development needs as outlined by the regional planning commission.

State highway department technicians are also expected to testify on the details of the proposal, including its costs. Under the state special bridge act, there is provision for the sharing of the costs of such projects by the state, the county and the sponsoring city government.

On the basis of the record as made at the hearing, and on the conclusions of its own engineering staff, the highway commission will later make a decision on the need for the bridge, and possibly list it in the annual budget for a forthcoming fiscal operations year.

Hilbert Considers $90,412 Budget

Plan Calls for Tax Rate Hike Of About 50 Cents Per $1,000

HILBERT — A tentative $90,412 rate of about 50 cents per $1,000 is being considered by the Hilbert Village Board. A complete breakdown of proposed expenditures and estimated revenues will be prepared and published soon along with a notice of a budget public hearing.

The discussion was on general terms since the tentative budget draft has not been prepared. Trustees worked with basic estimates and expect that village spending for village, state, county and school purposes during 1963 will amount to about $90,400.

Aids from sources other than direct taxes against real estate and personal property are estimated at $25,446 leaving $64,954 as the tax levy. To produce the levy, a

Three Injured At Black Creek

BLACK CREEK—Separate auto tractor and corn picking machine mishaps injured three Black Creek residents during the week-end.

Andrew Buecker, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Buecker, route 1, sustained a possible fractured rib Saturday when he was pinned beneath a tractor at his home.

Cheryl Duhm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Duhm, received bruises Friday evening when she was struck by a car driven by James Benzschawl as she was crossing a street. Miss Duhm allegedly had stopped for a car going in one direction and did not see the Benzschawl car approaching from the opposite direction. She was examined at Appleton Memorial Hospital. No serious injuries were found.

Terry Rihm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Rihm received injuries Friday in a mishap with a corn picker. No serious injuries are reported.

Teachers Will Attend Meeting

FREEDOM — Teachers from schools in Freedom, Wrightstown, Zion won the other game by a score of 9-5.

New London broke their losing streak by winning the first two games from Bear Creek by scores of 2-1 and 6-2. Bear Creek won the third game by a 4-3 score.

This week's schedule calls for annual Christmas party will be made when the New London Boat year's rate may be 5.32 per cent of the payroll.

A report from the nominating committee will also be given.

Hilbert High Schedules Open House

HILBERT — An open house program has been scheduled for Nov. 12 at Hilbert Public Schools.

In observance of National Education Week, Robert Sutter, supervising principal, has announced. Beginning at 7:30 p.m., the high school department will conduct an abbreviated class schedule. Each class will take 10 minutes with both squads hitting for 23 in and the parents will be asked to attend the classes of their children.

In this way, Sutter explained, the parents and interested persons will have an opportunity to become acquainted with the purposes of the classes and meet the teachers.

The elementary section will have displays of student work prepared and teachers will be on hand to discuss the progress of their pupils with parents.

Refreshments will be served in the multi-purpose room to conclude the program.

This marks the third year similar National Education Week observances at the school.

Lettermen Back For Hilbert Cage Season

Open House Set For Parents, Fans Saturday at 7:30

HILBERT — A nucleus of seven lettermen are working out under Hilbert High School basketball coach Edward Burns as the Wolves prepare for the 1962-63 Little Nine Conference campaign.

The lettermen include three seniors, Neil Ott, Larry Pruess and Mike Weinreis, and four juniors, Gary Bornemann, Keith Schwabenberg, Bob Stecker and Jerry Thiel.

Aside from the lettermen, the varsity squad consists of Roger Schneider, a senior; Gerald Hackbarth and Paul Kessler, juniors; Andy Schaefer, a sophomore, and Gary Schwabenberg.

The squad that began practice Monday has size in addition to experience. Tallest man on the varsity is Schaefer. The rangy, 6-4 1/2 sophomore shows real promise.

Burns said. Along with him, the Wolves have Thiel, a 6-4 junior letterman.

Weinreis is a good outside gunner. The Wolves look like a good bet to make a marked improvement on their 5-3 league and 9-12 over-all records of a year ago.

Squad Preview Parents and fans will get a preview of the squad in action at an open house practice session Saturday. Beginning at 7:30 p.m., the Wolves will run through a drill and an inter-squad game for the benefit of the team's backers.

Refreshments will be served after the inter-squad game.

The remainder of the schedule: Dec. 7—Hilbert at Shiocton; Dec. 14—Winneconne at Hilbert; Dec. 15—Stockbridge at Hilbert; Dec. 21—Hilbert at Freedom; Jan. 6—Hilbert at Denmark; Jan. 11—Reedsville at Hilbert; Jan. 18—Hortonville at Hilbert; Jan. 25—Wrightstown at Hilbert; Feb. 2—Fox Valley Lutheran at Hilbert; Feb. 8—Denmark at Hilbert; Feb. 15—Omro at Hilbert; Feb. 22—Hilbert at Stockbridge.
